GOP roars to election with Nixon at helm

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Campaign-hungry Republicans, undaunted by shrieking protesters massed outside, nominated President Nixon Tuesday night to seek another four years in the White House against George S. McGovern and his divided Democrats.

Thousands of red, white and blue balloons cascaded and popped noisily to the GOP convention floor when the roll call of states was commpleted, giving Nixon 1,347 votes to a single ballot for Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California.

It was Misssouri which put Nixon over the top at 10:50 p.m. EDT, when its 30 votes pushed the President past the required majority of 675 ballots

Nixon, the unchallenged leader of a wealthy party more unified and self-confident than at any time since the heyday of Dwight D. Eisenhower, watched from his Key Biscayne vacation retreat a few miles to the south.

He saw his name placed in nomination by an old political foe, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, who with other party liberals had just lost a battle to try to tip the balance of delegate power in favor of the large industrial states at the 1976 convention.

Rockefeller's speech set off chants of "We Want Nixon" and "Four More Years!" among the flag-waving delegates, and 11 brief seconding speeches followed. They included Walter J. Hickel—the man Nixon fired as Interior secretary—a Vietnam veteran, the wife of Democratic Mayor Henry Maier of Milwaukee, an 18-year-old black alternate delegate from Nevada, and former astronaut Frank Borman.

Nixon will deliver his acceptance speech tonight at the final, 7:30 p.m. EDT convention session that also will renominate Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as the President's hand-picked running mate.

Outside, 1,000 cursing, shoving demonstrators virtually surrounded the sprawling Miami Beach Convention Hall. Delegates arriving for the evening session were jostled and their cars were pummeled, and some — including Sen. James L. Buckley of New York —required a police escort to get through. Several arrests and four injuries were reported.

Earlier in the day, police arrested 212 of the demonstrators who raced down Collins Avenue, disrupting traffic, tearing down GOP posters and American flags and smashing some windows after they were turned away from the Fontainebleau Hotel. Tuesday night, a police sergeant said: "The demonstrators have escalated, therefore we have escalated."

Nixon stopped briefly at Miami International Airport on his way from Washington to his vacation retreat south of Miami Beach. At an airport rally, he greeted members of his family and a cheering crowd of several thousand youngsters by predicting he would sweep the youth vote in November.

In jest, he said: "I think I'm going to be nominated tonight—I just think so."

Nixon, his acceptance speech already written, will go to Convention Hall tonight after Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is renominated. There he will outline his campaign strategy against Democrat George S. McGovern, whom the GOP already has pictured as a radical extremist out of step with the American people.

Inside Convention Hall, the GOP's dominant conservative wing easily killed a bid by liberal reformers to win a delegate selection formula for the 1976 convention that would favor the large urban states which traditionally have voted Democratic.

The roll call vote to defeat the liberal rules plan was 910 to 434. A 675-vote majority of the 1,348 delegates was required to win.

Party leaders from New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan and other vote-heavy states carried their fight to the floor after efforts to patch up a compromise collapsed, even with White House mediation. But the power of the smaller, more conservative states — notably in the South and West —prevailed on the floor as it did in the party's Rules Committee.

The convention decided to preserve essentially unchanged the present system of awarding "bonus delegates" to states which vote Republican, a formula which favors the smaller states where Vice President Spiro T. Agnew draws the bulk of his support.

Search on for man feared creek victim

By GARY BARANIK
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Police and volunteer firefighters searched for two and a half hours late Tuesday night for a man believed to have fallen into McMichaels Creek near the Broad Street Bridge.

Stroudsburg and Stroud Township police and Stroudsburg and Stroud Township firemen called off the search for a man believed to be Fred Brigham, address unknown, at 10:30 p.m. The search will resume this morning.

Clarence Booth of East Stroudsburg, manager of the VFW Bowling Alley on the south bank of the creek, reportedly saw a man "walk around the fence by the wall and start to shake a tree." Booth didn't see him come out.

It was reported that the man had entered the VFW Club early in the evening. Bartender Robert Roth of Marshalls Creek said the man had a membership card from a New England state. He told Roth that he lived in Maine and New Hampshire.

Roth said the man said he was fired from the Shawnee Inn on Tuesday. He was drinking heavily at the bar, according to Roth.

The man then went into the bowling alley where Booth noticed that he was bothering some of the female patrons and was on the verge of falling asleep.

Booth followed his progress outside, but then had to return to the bowling alley. At 8:15 p.m., Booth called Stroudsburg police.

Roth and Booth described the man as about 50, five feet, eight inches tall and 170 pounds with short hair. After checking with the Shawnee Inn. The Pocono Record learned that a man fitting that description was fired on Tuesday.

According to an Inn spokesman, the man was believed to be Fred Brigham. He was employed for two weeks as a dishwasher.

Fire Chief Tom Philips of the Stroudsburg Fire Co. headed the search, which was called off at 10:30 p.m. He said a total of 45 men and six trucks including the Stroud Township Fire Co. assisted in the operation.

Rescue workers searched from McMichaels Creek to the Brodhead Creek, about a half-mile from the Broad Street Bridge.

Officers Wayne Coye and John Rundle of the Stroudsburg police received Booth's call, and notified the other organizations.

State lottery resumes

HELLERTOWN, Pa. — The weekly state lottery drawings resume today following a six-week absence because of an estimated $660,000 in flood damage. The drawing was to be held here in the East End Baseball Field in Dimmick Park. Revenue Secretary Robert P. Kane has estimated the flood delay has cost the state about $7.5 million that would have gone towards property tax relief for the elderly.

Shapp hails tax reforms

HARRISBURG — Gov. Milton J. Shapp said Monday that two corporate tax reform laws which take effect Sept. 10 will stimulate the state's economy and at the same time lower governmental costs. The laws abolish the exise tax on capital stock of domestic corporations and modernize the state's corporation fee system. "This long overdue legislation updates an archaic corporation fee schedule set up to cover the cost of filing documents half a century ago," Shapp said.

Cong chide GOP platform

PARIS — The Viet Cong said Tuesday that President Nixon is missing a chance to settle the war in Vietnam "within several days" by maintaining, even in the Republican platform, his support of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu. Ly Van Sau, official spokesman for the Viet Cong delegation to the peace talks, also said the Nixon administration is attempting to "trick American opinion" into the belief that its program of Vietnamization of the war is succeeding.

VFW belabors 'meddlers'

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — The Veterans of Foreign Wars accused actress Jane Fonda and former Attorney General Ramsey Clark Tuesday of being "traitorous meddlers" in U.S. policy in Vietnam and recommended they be prosecuted. The VFW's annual convention adopted a resolution urging that "individual citizens such as Jane Fonda, Ramsey Clark and other so-called unofficial ambassadors for peace be classified as traitorous meddlers in official government security."

European conference set

MOSCOW — Russian and Finnish leaders have agreed to propose Nov. 22 as the opening date of an international meeting in Helsinki to formulate the European Security Conference that Moscow has demanded for years, Soviet political sources said Tuesday. Finnish President Urho K. Kekkonen will send invitations suggesting the date to all West and East European states and to the United States and Canada in the next few days.

LBJ gives McGovern 'advice'

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Sen. George S. McGovern, eating steaming slabs of Texas beef at Lyndon B. Johnson's ranch, got some "good, homey, down to earth advice" from the former president Tuesday on how to unite the Democratic party and win in November.

"We are going to take his advice to heart," McGovern said at a news conference later. "We are trying to reach out very hard to the people who did not support my nomination."

It was McGovern's first meeting with LBJ since 1968, when they split—openly and bitterly—over Johnson's decision to send a half million American troops to Vietnam.

But the old foes appeared to be fast friends at the meeting, which included Sargent Shriver, McGovern's vice presidential running mate.

"I have never found the President warmer and more encouraging in his support," the South Dakota senator said after he and Shriver flew to the LBJ Ranch in the Texas hill country to receive Johnson's personal blessing.

Nixon cheered at rock concert

MIAMI (UPI) — President Nixon, his acceptance speech already written and predicting he would win the youth vote in November, paid a surprise visit on a GOP-sponsored rock concert Tuesday night a few minutes after his renomination for President.

Given a rousing welcome by the thousands of youths jammed in Marine Memorial Stadium, Nixon's appearance was beamed back to the Convention Hall so the delegates could watch on three huge television screens above the podium.

Their cheers still were ringing in the cavernous hall when Nixon arrived at the concert which was hosted by entertainer Sammy Davis Jr.

Nixon paid tribute to Davis as a "great entertainer" who supported Democratic Presidents in the past.

"You aren't gonna buy Sammy Davis Jr. by inviting him to the White House," he said, and Davis enthusiastically threw his arms around the President on the stage.

Nixon noted that both he and Davis came from humble backgrounds "and we've both done fairly well."

"I believe in the American dream," he said. "Sammy Davis believes in it. We believe in it because we've seen it come true in our own lives.

"But the American dream will not truly come true until every person in this country has a chance to see it come true in their own lives," the President declared.

Nixon, who has been backed by several other show business celebrities who have been Democrats in the past, said he was grateful to them because they "stuck their necks out" to back a Republican.

The youthful crowd of about 5,000 persons broke into wild cheers and chants when the President walked up on the stage after a phalanx of Secret Service men escorted him through the crowd. They cheered for five minutes, chanting "Four More Years. Four More Years."

Cost hike offset by wages

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The cost of living took its biggest jump upward in five months in July, mainly because of higher prices for meat and other food, but wages of the average worker more than kept pace with the higher prices, the government said Tuesday.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) said the consumer price index measuring a broad market basket of goods and services went up 0.4 per cent last month, the steepest rise since February. Higher food prices, particularly meat, accounted for about two-thirds of the increase.

But the BLS said average wages of workers increased enough to cover the added cost of living.

Assistant Treasury Secretary Edgar R. Fielder, called the report a "mixed bag" of good and bad news, but he added: "We expect to see further signs of a cutback in the pace of inflation before the end of the year."

Protestors storm in Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Antiwar demonstrators roamed through Miami Beach Tuesday, smashing windows and harassing delegates. In the evening, they laid siege to Convention Hall, tying up traffic and jeering delegates going inside for the nomination of President Nixon.

Police hauled 212 demonstrators off to jail in mass arrests Tuesday afternoon and three more in the evening when 1,000 demonstrators surounded the hall on three sides.

The demonstrators massed in groups in front of every gate at the hall. Police and state troopers broke them up and cleared out narrow corridors for the cars to inch through.

One person was reported injured.

The nighttime demonstrations capped 12 hours of confrontations and disruptions which also included a grisly "guerilla theater" around the hall by performers in deathly white masks and black robes acting out American "war crimes" in Vietnam.

A policeman was hurt when struck by a thrown stone. At least one demonstator was treated for head lacerations, apparently after being struck by a car.

"It's mayhem out there," a police spokesman said.

At one delegate gate, where cars of convention-goers passed through a chain-link fence, police and demonstrators stood face to face, two feet apart.

Demonstrators pounded on the cars as they moved slowly through the crowd, screaming insults at the occupants.

The driver of one limousine said his car, carrying Judge and Mrs. Martin J. Roess of St. Petersburg, Fla., was surrounded for 20 minutes by demonstrators who beat on the vehicle with their fists and with sticks,

Action after election

State to sue for delegates

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)— The Pennsylvania Republican Party decided Tuesday to go to federal court to get its "fair share" of delegates to the 1976 national convention.

Sen. Hugh Scott said the state party would file its suit in federal court. "But there will be no legal action until after the election," he said.

The decision was made shortly after the Republican National Convention defeated an amendment that would have given Pennsylvania 103 delegates next time. Instead, the state will get a maximum of 85.

"It is my judgement that this action is unlikely to be sustained in the courts," Scott said. "It is unconstitutional and violates the one-man one-vote principle."

The movement to go to court was initiated by Andrew L. Lewis, a delegate from Schwenksville, who wrote a petition. Only five state delegates refused to sign the petition, Scott said.

Pennsylvania sent lobbyists throughout the convention hall seeking votes for the amendment to a Rules Committee report. Cliff Jones, state chairman, said he wanted at least 400 votes to "make a good showing" and lay the groundwork for a court suit. The vote was 434-910.

Scott refused to participate in the lobbying because he is President Nixon's floor manager. But he insisted the President took no stand on this issue.

The state delegation voted earlier in the day to wage a floor fight for no less than 113 delegates. But they later decided to go along with a plan porposed by U.S. Rep. William Steiger of Wisconsin, which provided 103.

During the caucus there was only one dissenter, Eugene Hamill. Later, Edward B. Byrne of Scottdale also decided to vote against his delegation.

H. Harrison Haskell, of Titusville, wanted to vote "no" but he was swayed by Jones.

Ulster bomb kills eight

BELFAST (UPI)—A 100-pound bomb exploded prematurely Tuesday as two gunmen were placing it in a Northern Ireland border customs post at Newry. The blast killed the two bombers and six other persons.

In addition to the eight killed, six other persons were injured and the brick customs building was destroyed.

"I wish to God it was all over," said a young man who worked at the devastated customs post. "It doesn't really mean much when you read about it in Belfast. But these were my mates."

About 30 persons worked at the customs post outside Newry, 32 miles south of Belfast in County Down.

Campaign fund violations hinted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government auditors readied a report Tuesday on how President Nixon's re-election campaign committee handled thousands of dollars collected on his behalf. It was expected to show various violations of the new political fund reporting law.

The General Accounting Office (GAO), the investigative arm of Congress, has been auditing the records of the Committee For the Re-election of the President as part of a probe sparked by the Watergate break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters June 17.

The investigation was ordered by the GAO after two checks totaling $114,000 allegedly were routed from the committee to the bank account of Bernard Barker, one of five men seized with bugging equipment at the Democratic premises.

An official of the GAO, Philip S. Hughes, has indicated that possibly more than $100,000 in contributions may be involved in violations of the rules governing campaign fund reporting. Other published reports put the figure at $500,000.

The Los Angeles Times, in a story published Tuesday, said the Nixon re-election committee bought several thousands of dollars worth of electronic security equipment prior to the break-in. However, the newspaper quoted Republican sources as saying the detection devices were "defensive" —that is designed to prevent any breach in the GOP security system.

Republican sources also claimed that any violations reported by the GAO would be the result of technical or administrative errors and not fraud.

The $114,000 traced to Barker's bank account consisted of a $25,000 cashier's check made out to Kenneth H. Dahlberg, a Nixon fund raiser. Dahlberg said he collected the funds as part of campaign contributions, and turned the money over to Nixon's finance chairman, former Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans on April 11. This was four days after the new law requiring disclosure of the money went into effect.

GOP youth 'herded' like cattle

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Burch Stein, a 17-year-old high school student who is on the Pennsylvania state staff of Young Voters for Re-election of the President, said Tuesday 3,000 Young Republicans were brought to the party's national convention to be "herded around like cattle" to cheer for GOP celebrities.

Stein, from Elkins Park, Pa., took part in a 10-minute demonstration for Mrs. Pat Nixon when she was honored at the convention session. Afterward he said: "I just got fed up with it. I just couldn't stand up every five minutes and cheer, and cheer, and cheer.

"Five minutes before we got off the bus we were told to cheer and cheer and not shut up."

Pa. Republicans tread cautiously

Senate gets vote reform bills

HARRISBURG (UPI) — A committee sent to the Senate Tuesday bills that would permit absentee voter registration by mail, extend the absentee voting deadline and set up at-large voting registrars.

Sen. Donald Oesterling, D-Butler, chairman of the Senate Elections Committee, said the bills represented a "compromise" of the more liberal reforms proposed by the Shapp administration.

The bills were scheduled for a final vote today but Republican leaders indicated they were not anxious to make any "hasty changes."

In the House, the State Government Committee reported to the floor legislation to permit special voter registration in Luzerne County, where all voting records were destroyed in the flood.

The election reform bills, according to Oesterling, would:

— Permit the counting of absentee ballots received up until the polls close election day.

— Permit those persons who will be out of their voting districts for the entire registration period to register to vote by mail.

Give any county commissioner or county party chairman the right to appoint atlarge voter registrars who can register voters at any time during the registration period.

The first two bills are needed to bring state laws into compliance with the federal 1970 voting rights act. Indications were that both would pass with few problems.

Republicans, however, already have indicated they were opposed to some provisions of the bill setting up at-large registrars.

The bill provides that if neither the county commissioners nor the party chairman appoint registrars, then citizens in the county can petition the secretary of the commonwealth to appoint them.

Oesterling said the signatures of one-half of one per cent of the residents in the county would be required on the petition.

It also provides that the registrars would serve voluntarily, without pay, and could be removed only "for cause." They would serve for the length of the registration period.

Minority leader Robert Fleming, R-Allegheny, said however, that county party chairman should not have the right to appoint the registrars and that the registrars should be paid.

The Senate also moved into a position for final passage four bills in Gov. Milton J. Shapp's flood relief package that already have been passed by the House. They would:

—Amend the constitution to permit the state to enact special laws to aid individuals or businesses who were affected by the flood.

—Permit the state to repay volunteer fire, rescue and ambulance companies for flood losses.

—Permit local industrial development authorities to undertake flood control projects.

—Require the state to pay pre-flood values to persons whose homes are taken under emminent domain laws to make way for roads.

The special Luzerne County voter registration bill reported to the House floor contained four changes in the form passed by the Senate.

The original proposal provided $175,000 to regisfer persons through election day.

Attack beaten off

N. Viet tanks hit marines

SAIGON (UPI) — Tank-led North Vietnamese troops attacked a battered force of South Vietnamese marines in Quang Tri city Tuesday to try to break the stalemated battle and drive the marines out of the provincial capital. The marines fought off the attack, killing more than 100 of the Communists.

One U. S. Air Force fighter-bomber was shot down in the attack and its two crewmen were listed as missing. A second American fighter plane was also hit but the crew was able to fly it back to the U. S. base at Da Nang.

More than 100 miles to the south, a 7,000-man South Vietnamese force moved into Que Son Valley below Da Nang to try to thwart a new Communist advance. The government troops moved to within two miles of Fire Base Ross, which was captured by the Communists Saturday.

The North Vietnamese poured out of the jungled hills overlooking the valley, capturing Ross and the nearby district capital of Que Son. Military spokesmen said an estimated 350 South Vietnamese were killed, wounded or listed as missing in the weekend action.

The move put the Communists within 30 miles of Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city with a population of 300,000. They also brought in a number of 130mm guns—extremely accurate artillery pieces with a range of 17 miles.

Some authorities feared the advance preceeded a North Vietnamese attack on Da Nang, which has never been under direct assault since the Americans entered the war.

Ellsberg says Nixon chose war

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Daniel Ellsberg said Tuesday he prepared a list of Vietnam policy options for President Nixon when Nixon took office, and the President deliberately chose to escalate the war.

Ellsberg, who gave the Pentagon Papers to the press, appeared at a news conference with Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California, a Republican-liberal and war critic.

Chess title match adjourned

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) —Bobby Fischer, accused by the Russians of making numerous complaints and demands to "deliberately" upset champion Boris Spassky, adjourned the 17th game of the $250,000 world championship chess match with the Soviet titleholder Tuesday night.

Fischer, whose threat to quit the match if playing conditions were not improved led to the removal of some spectator seats, left the stage even before Spassky wrote and sealed his 40th move.

Fischer had opened with a defense he had never before played—the so-called Pirc defense—and at adjournment held a rook, knight and six pawns to Spassky's two rooks and five pawns.

Fischer holds a three-point edge over Spassky—9.5 points to 6.5—and needs but three more points to take the championship away from the Russian. The 17th game was scheduled to resume at 5 p.m.

Armed duo demands 'husband'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two armed men seized eight persons as hostages in a Brooklyn bank Tuesday and demanded release of a patient in a psychiatric ward described by one of the gunmen as his "husband."

The gunmen later released one hostage, a bank guard, and demanded to be allowed to take two of the remaining hostages through police lines. Police said the demand would not be met.

One of the men, reached by telephone inside the Chase Manhattan branch bank, said, "I'm gay. When I get Ernest back, then I'll release one of the hostages."

The gunman identified himself as John Wojtowicz. He demanded the release of "my husband, Ernest Aron, who is a patient in the psychiatric ward at Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn."

GOP admits can't win House

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Although they are supremely confident of President Nixon's chances this fall, Republicans concede that they cannot win control of the House and that only unprecedented gains in the South can give them a majority in the Senate.

A UPI survey of key politicians in every state delegation to the Republican National Convention showed Tuesday that if the national election were held now, President Nixon still would have to battle a Democratic-controlled Congress.

The survey showed that even in the opinion of Republican leaders themselves, the party would fall short of winning the 40 seats it needs to capture control of the House for the first time since 1954.

And in the Senate—also in control of the Democrats since 1954—the GOP must pick off five Democratic seats while holding onto all 19 of their contested seats. The survey indicated that party leaders felt the Republicans might gain Senate control, but only with the help of victories in Alabama, Louisiana, North Carolina, Virginia and Georgia.

The GOP concedes that Democratic Rep. Ed Edmondson is leading in Oklahoma for the seat being vacated by Sen. Fred Harris. The Republicans pick their man in Tuesday's primary but State Chairman Clarence Warner concedes that "we have a great challenge" to gain any ground.

Bacon to be out in open

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Agriculture Department declared an "open window" policy on bacon Tuesday so shoppers can tell the fat from the lean.

It announced a new full-disclosure rule that will require window-type bacon packages, starting next Feb. 19, to show at least 70 per cent of a "representative" strip of bacon.

Department officials said consumers complain that too many such packages now show only a thin, lean-looking sliver of the slices that too often turn out to have much more fat than meat when the package is opened.

The department also announced a companion rule, to go into effect at the same time, that will require product labels to list controversial chemicals such as nitrates and nitrites when they are used in processing cured meats.

Many curing solutions use such chemicals to maintain the red color of meats, despite growing scientific evidence that they may be harmful to health.

The bacon packaging rule was proposed last April at the urging of Virginia H. Knauer, President Nixon's consumer adviser.

Chilean army bans meetings

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—The army said Tuesday it will ban meetings and parades indefinitely in Santiago province during the state of emergency decreed by President Salvador Allende to end a wave of violence in which 159 persons have been arrested.

Gen. Hector Bravo, commander of the Santiago military district, said the prohibition would be imposed as soon as the autonomous comptroller general approves his designation by Allende as emergency zone chief.

Blue Valley Farm Show begins

BANGOR — A few years back, the famous singing team of Simon and Garfunkle, presently apart, recorded a light toe-tapper proclaiming "it's all happening at the zoo," or something to that affect.

Well, that may be true, but, for the time being, "it's all happening at the fair;" the Blue Valley Farm Show, that is.

The 27th annual farm show began Tuesday at the farm show grounds on the Bangor-Pen Argyl highway, midway between the two boroughs. The festivities will continue through Saturday night, when the presentation of farm show awards and the selection of the 1972 Fair Queen will bring five days of excitement for area residents to a close.

Judging of various exhibits, including home economics goods from high school home economics classes and various classes of livestock, will occupy most of today's ledger. Industrial arts and 4-H Club homemaking exhibits will also be among the items to be scrutinized during today's activities.

Students having completed one or more high school or junior high school semesters of home economics courses are eligible to enter their wares for today's contests. Pretty young ladies will enter cakes (chocolate, butter cakes, sponge cakes, chiffon cakes and angel cakes), cookies, including Toll House and chocolate drop cookies; yeast bread, yeast rolls, different classes of muffins, fruit pies, beans, sweet corn, tomatoes, pears, peaches, many different types of sweet and sour pickles and jellies and jams, which will be arranged in jars similar to the methods used years ago.

Junior and senior high school students will enter personally-made clothing for the judges scrutiny, and possible purchase to raise funds for next year's exhibits. Clothing of the home-made nature will be displayed, as will home furnishings and industrial exhibits, including types of smaller home furnishings.

Other exhibits will be composed of wood-workings, metal work, drafting portfolios and hand crafts made by students in trade classes during the summer months. These entries will be divided into different classes also.

And then there is the pet parade, a feature of nearly every country fair. Area residents will parade their recently-bathed pooches or felines and other animals and attempt to take first prize in many different classes.

Pet prizes will be awarded for the best float displaying a pet or pets, best looking dog, best looking cat, largest pet, smallest pet, most unusual pet and largest pet family. Pet shows are always fun for everyone concerned and this year's promises to be a good one.

During the evening, live entertainment will be provided by a local coronet group. The Roseto Coronet Band, appearing through the courtesy of the American Federation of Musicians, Local 577, will entertain fair-goers with an array of their ever-popular selections.

Fritz the Clown will also perform at the fair. Clown shows are always entertaining for the younger set, enabling their parents to promise the kids something they can look forward to.

The action will continue Thursday without a break with judgings of 4-H livestock, especially cattle, beginning in the morning. Floral displays, including house plants of a blooming nature, specimen flowers and foliage plants are entered and will be judged Thursday. A special award for artistic arrangement of a display will also be featured.

Topping Thursday's bill is the annual beauty contest sponsored by Easton Radio Station WEEX. A bevy of beauties will vie for this year's title of Miss WEEX, along with the trophies and scholarships that go with the title.

Most of Friday's time will be taken up with the displaying of various exhibits, beginning at 6 p.m. Entertainment for fair-goers will be provided by another local group, Blue Valley Youth Band.

Farm Show queens from years past will return for a gathering Friday at the fair. The former winners will take a sentimental stroll in front of the very people who may have been present when these girls won their titles.

Saturday, the farm show's wind-up day, will feature the presentation of this year's Farm Show Awards and the beauty contest.

Little ones were there, too

Youngsters barely able to walk and even a few still in carriages accompanied their parents to Tuesday's opening night of the Blue Valley Farm Show. The show will continue nightly through Saturday.

A female veterinarian? Don't wager against her

By JOE MIEGOC
Pocono Record Reporter

BANGOR — Ever wonder who does the heavy work of caring for the animals on a farm? Usually, the men of the family or hired help, right?

Not always. Linda Guest, a cute little 18-year-old blonde, gets up every morning at 5:30 to help with the animals at Maple Grove Farm, her parents farm near Nazareth. She'd slop the pigs too, but the farm doesn't have any of that squat fellows.

Remarkable enough, Linda has always enjoyed working with animals at her farm. Her reason? She actually desires to become a veterinarian, a medical occupation which doesn't have too many female members.

"I sure do want to be a vet and the only way I can properly learn how to treat animals is to take care of them now at the farm," said Linda, adding that her serious intention concerning veterinary medicine reached its peak "at the end of tenth grade," when she decided she wanted to do something to help sick animals.

She also would like to eventually do work in biological field, but for the time being she is content to limit her venture into medicine to the treatment of animals. She is at the Blue Valley Farm Show to take care of the six-cow contingent present from Maple Grove Farm.

She was with the cows last night until 11 p.m., when her uncle relieved her. She had stayed overnight at last year's fair, but this year she is returning home to Nazareth each night.

As many people attending the show passed through the long barn housing nearly 70 cows, they did a double-take when they noticed it was a girl with the cows, not a man.

"Sure, people look twice when they see me here, but it doesn't bother me at all," she said. "I've been doing it all my life, so I must like it by now. Usually, a girl will stay away from animals, but I've always been around them because I live on a farm," she added.

Linda explained that one reason for people staying away from animals a lot is that they are afraid the animals are filthy. "There's always soap and water, so you can wash off any dirt from an animal," she commented.

A June graduate of Nazareth High School, she begins her venture into veterinary medicine in mid-September at the Hazleton branch of Penn State University. At Hazleton she will be able to take the pre-med courses for veterinary medicine, but must follow up her two years there with at least another year at Penn State's main campus at University Park.

Linda has two brothers and a sister, all of whom are younger than she is. She said this might have been a reason she got interested in animals, but really wasn't sure when her interest began.

But she was sure why she became interested. "I like animals and I don't like to see them suffer. They don't enjoy being sick any more than humans do. I like to feel good and so does an animal. I just like to see them enjoying life, that's all," she added.

She has often helped deliver calves at her farm, often at odd times during the night. She remembers helping deliver a 70-pound cow and has also helped deliver others who have tipped the scales at more than 50 pounds.

She's been around to other fairs and says the reaction from people there is almost the same. "They seem amazed that a girl would actually be working with cows, or any animals for that matter. People always ask me why I'm around the animals and I always tell them it's because I like them. They seem a bit amazed when I tell them I want to be a vet," she noted.

A neighbor who had crossed her path in the cow barn at the fair said she has a reputation for her fine work with animals. "Once an animal, I think it was a horse, was sick or something and the owners called a vet who had to come a long way to see the animal. Linda's reputation is so great that someone suggested the owner call her, because she's probably as good as the vet anyway, if not even better," said the woman.

A question which might come up in this situation would be Linda's relationship to boys while she is known for caring so much for animals. But she says she has never met anyone who didn't like her because she liked animals or wanted to become a vet.

"I'm not boy-crazy, so I really haven't experienced too many problems like that. But I don't like going steady with a boy because that would tie me down too much and I wouldn't like that. A boy whom you're going steady with doesn't like it when you talk to anyone else. I'm not like that; I like to talk to different people and meet people. I like to be friendly to everyone," she noted with a cute smile.

Right now, she's looking forward to going to Penn State, but not enough to not be able to look further into the future. "I'd like to come back here and establish a practice here, even though it will be a long time before I'm able to practice veterinary medicine," she said.

Plenty of action on opening night

BANGOR — "Step right up and try and knock the bottles down and win a prize. One throw for a quarter, five for a dollar."

This was but one comment from a booth vendor last night at the Blue Valley Farm Show as the Bangor Exchange Club opened its 27th annual gathering on the fairgrounds off the Bangor-Pen Argyl highway.

Opening night is usually one of the quietest nights at any fair and Blue Valley's first night was no exception. Most of the show officials spent their time discussing which exhibit should go where, even though lines had been marked off on the floors of the exhibit halls for this purpose.

Dairy farmers unloaded their prize cows from their vans during the afternoon hours and by early evening the cow barns were filling rapidly. Judging for these animals will be completed today, but the animals will remain around a bit longer, in some cases until Saturday's end of the show.

Children of all ages lined up through the heart of the fair waiting to purchase tickets for the many rides set up on the fairgrounds. Some rides were packed, while a space capsule with five spaces for riders inside seemed to be empty all evening. The kids didn't want to whirl around and stayed away.

One huge ferris wheel spun high above the ground filled to capacity. The line at this ride never ended as riders got back at the end of the line again as soon as they were finished.

A fire company from Sandt's Eddy was chancing off a 1972 Gran Torino at a booth in an advantageous position near the main ticket window. But business was a bit slow here, too.

A man behind a coin-pitching booth explained the reluctance of fair-goers on "the first night blues."

Here's one way to help police

An acquaintance of ours, a somewhat forgetful sort, told us the other day that he had completely forgotten to have his car inspected during the last inspection period and drove around for three weeks with an old sticker before a service station attendant alerted him.

What shook him up was the thought that he could have been stopped any one of a dozen times when he innocently drove past area police stations or into the crowded Stroudsburg shopping area.

But he wasn't stopped. And the fact that he wasn't says volumes about, not the efficiency of our police forces, but the inherent limitations of relying strictly on police to "keep the peace."

Our police forces are not large. They have a sizeable area to patrol and many things and places to watch. So it isn't surprising that our friend was able to drive around town for three weeks with an outdated inspection sticker without once being stopped for the infraction.

The lesson is that police can't be everywhere. Certainly, with modern techniques and equipment they could cover more ground than they do now, but not enough to keep an eye on everything, everywhere. We citizens must do that.

There are many programs being initiated all over the nation to help police. Usually they consist of neighborhood organizations that print stickers stating the homeowner belongs to this "watch-out" group. The stickers are pasted in prominent places and warn would-be intruders that these neighbors aren't afraid to get involved, but are on the alert for trouble.

Police departments have waxed enthusiastic about such groups. They help identify criminals and, eventually, scare them away before a crime is committed. Such an organization might be a good idea here in the Poconos, considering how many small, relatively isolated communities make up a sizeable part of the population.

Police can't be everywhere, but people are everywhere. If we were to become our brothers' watchdogs, if not their keepers, it might help reduce the crime rate and preserve what is best about this area — it's peaceful way of life.

And in this corner . . .

From here, it looks like George McGovern and Pat Nixon in November.

At least that's how it seems from the primary role given the First Lady at the Republican National Convention. Makes sense. Pat is better looking than her husband and has more personal charm. She also is harder to hit without cries of "foul" from every side.

The President has obviously opted for a background role in the election campaign. Heading the campaign (the visible part, anyway) will be a number of people — cabinet officers, tried and true Republican officials and Pat herself.

It's good logistics. President Nixon apparently learned something from his old chief, General Dwight D. Eisenhower. With this tactic, Democrat McGovern is faced with a Hydra-headed monster to battle. If you remember, the Hydra grew two new heads for every one that was lopped off.

That's about what McGovern will be faced with. For every Republican presidential campaigner he knocks off with a forceful argument or assortment of facts, two more will spring forward with fresh charges of "radical leftist!"

And then there's Pat Nixon. McGovern can hardly do battle with as consumate a lady as Mrs. Nixon. Unless, of course, Mrs. McGovern takes to the lists herself.

Even the late President Eisenhower has been enlisted in the cause, through the offices of his widow Mamie and an ingenious film that links Nixon and his late boss ideologically and politically.

No, it doesn't look like an easy battle for the Democratic contender. He can't even persuade the President to engage in open debate (Nixon learned about that in 1960).

At this point, it looks as though McGovern in November will be buried in votes and presidential campaigners. Led by the glowing Pat Nixon.

The Pennsylvania Story

New look in drugs

HARRISBURG — There is an all-new look coming in Pennsylvania's approach to drug and alcohol abuse.

Coordination of programs, rehabilitation and prevention are the key words in this newest innovative approach to drug and alcohol abuse problems.

Spearheading this new approach will be a six-member Governor's Council on Drug and Alcohol Abuse. Its responsibilities include evaluating the present problems in the Commonwealth, coordinating efforts of private and government agencies currently working on controls, providing preventive education, planning future efforts and assisting in providing adequate humane treatment and rehabilitation for offenders.

Gov. Milton J. Shapp has a personal commitment to this new effort and has taken an active role in the formation of the Council and the direction of its activities.

He personally interviewed and selected Dr. Richard Horman as the Director of the Council, and plans to attend Council meetings and be kept up-dated on Council activities.

In discussing the functions of the Council, Dr. Horman points up the recent state and federal legislation that will be aid their efforts considerably:

— Law enforcement agencies will be aided by more realistic standards to be applied in apprehension of the dealers and pushers of illegal narcotics.

— "Intent to sell' is now reason for prosecution, and according to Horman, "This solves a big problem and is important to the Criminal Justice System."

— Stiffer penalties are also provided for if the suspect is convicted.

— For drug users, treatment and rehabilitation services will be offered whenever possible as an alternative to imprisonment.

First meeting of the Council was held recently and after the initial organizational formaities the six members went to work.

The most important accomplishments of the first meeting were the designation of Council priorities.

First order

The first order of business will be setting up an information "clearing-house" where statistics and information related to the programs will be kept in a central place.

The chaos of information that exists today hopefully will disappear as the Council correlates statistics from several sources in the State.

This will particularly have an impact in reducing budgeting problems, as information will be readily available to ensure that funds can be distributed judiciously where most deserved.

Both federal and state laws call for one single state agency to be responsible for developing a master plan for training, education planning, treatment and law enforcement in the field.

Dr. Horman stresses that "cooperation and coordination of all efforts are necessary to make the program effective."

The Council is not a directing body, but rather it represents a new expert planning agency that works with people.

Pennsylvania has long needed a coordinated effort to beat the drug and alcohol abuse problem. The Governor's Council on Drug and Alcohol Abuse hopefully will be at least part of the answer.

Ramsey Clark

In one of the pithier phrases of the 1968 campaign, Republican orators described the then Attorney General Ramsey Clark as "a conscientious objector in the war against crime."

As campaign oratory, this oversimplified some aspects of Clark's performace, but it did point to a central truth about the Clark mind, his extreme and socialogically rationalized solicitude for the mugger and the rioter, and his rhetorical habit of blaming "society" rather than the individual perpetrators for theft and mayhem. And indeed I think this whole cast of mind is grandly mainifest in Clark's subsequent book "Crime in America."

But if he was a conscientious objector in the war against crime, Clark at last has found a war in which he can serve with complete enthusiasm. He has enlisted for the duration in the North Vietnamese propaganda campaign against the U.S. bombing.

Other casualties

Certainly no one finds any satisfaction in civialian casualties. But the notable thing about Ramsey Clark is that, judging by his public performace, he regrets civilian casualties only when they are North Vietnamese.

During the North Vietnamese offensive in the South, now six months old, Clark had nothing to say about the South Vietnamese killed by rocket and mortar attacks on their villages and towns.

He had not a word to say when North Vietnamese regulars carefully mined Highway One, slaughtering thousands of civilians fleeing southward from the liberators of Quang Tri.

Clark's humanitarian impluses were not stirred when hundreds of South Vietnamese civilians were discovered recently to have been executed by the Communist occupation forces, some of them having been buried alive.

At present the North Vietnamese are attacking in nine separate areas in the South, not with much success, apparently, but, as usual, shelling and rocketing the towns they cannot capture. Ramsey Clark is not touring the scene or issuing statements from Saigon condeming the Communists for slaughtering civilians.

No, he is back from Hanoi, where he issued statements condeming the U.S. bombing in the strongest possible terms, and made, among others, this extremely interesting statement: "The pople of this country (North Vietnam) believe their cause is just. Every person I have seen has shown by his acts and his word his total commitment. The lesson is the hope of the future of manking. . .We must learn that a people who believe their cause is just, however poor or few, can never be conquered."

Other just causes

That is bad history and worse logic. The Japanese pilots who bombed Pearl Harbor and the German soldiers who invaded Russia certainly believed their cause was just. They were conquered. The Poles who fought both the Germans and the Russians in World War II, only to be swallowed up by the Red Army, certainly though their cause was just.

Furthermore, the fact that a man feels his cause is just does not necessarily mean that his cause is in fact just.

Let's move on tax

In retrospect

By Bert Walter

Creation of the nine-member Monroe County Tax Study committee several years ago was a giant step forward for tax reform in Monroe County.

Unfortunately, like so many other things, tax reform was and still is a politically popular issue to talk about — and all our officials do is talk about it.

The opportunity now is here to give Monroe County taxpayers needed tax reform.

The Monroe County Tax Study Committee is overwhelmingly in favor of abolishing the occupation tax. Although the committee has not taken an official position, its members wholeheartedly supported abolishing the tax when they were polled by The Pocono Record a month ago. In addition to the committee members, school and township officials oppose the tax because it is inequitable.

Chief assessor William Fetherman also agrees it is an unfair tax and, unless it is collected on an equitable basis, the tax should be abolished.

But what are our Monroe County commissioners doing about it? They know how the tax committee, the school and township officials feel about it, but still all we get from our three commissioners is procrastination.

The commissioners have said they are by law obligated to collect the tax for the taxing districts which have it and for self-preservation the county retains the tax to pay for the collection.

It is an invalid reason. Let's look at the facts: It costs the county $12,000 in 1971 to collect the tax. This was the cost of the assessors and does not include cost of paperwork and other office routine for the administration of the tax. The county made $72,326.

Even if another $12,000 cost is deducted for office expenses (by far a very high estimate), the county still ends up making $48,326 on a tax which its study committee agrees is unjust.

The primary and only valid reason the three commissioners had for delaying making a decision is that they felt the county should get some revenue for collecting the tax for the townships and schools. But Fetherman has told the commissioners that according to the new tax manual, commissioners are not obligated to collect the tax for the townships and schools.

The East Stroudsburg School District, which is more in need of tax money than any other taxing district in the county, has already indicated its intention to abolish the occupation tax.

We feel that most municipalities want to abolish the tax, but are looking toward the commissioners to take the initial step. If the commissioners take the just action to abolish the tax we are convinced municipalities will soon follow.

We think all three — Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, William Quinn and Arlington Martin — should drive to Avon Court, the Monroe County Housing Authority's project for the elderly, and talk to the retired woman living on social security and explain to her why being "retired" is a profession and why — living hand to mouth — should pay the occupation tax.

The commissioners should also talk to some other retired persons, some of whom have less than $10 a week to spend on groceries, and tell them why the county is retaining this tax and why the county has a $700,000 surplus in the bank from last year's budget, the interest on which gives the county more than twice what some of these retired people are earning in one year.

Former Monroe County Commissioner and chief assessor C.A. (Phys) Nauman supports the occupation tax and in 1966 was instrumental in drafting the occupation tax manual. Nauman suggests updating the manual every few years and this is his answer of making the tax equitable.

Updating the manual, however, is just half the problem. In order to make the tax truly equitable, the manual must constantly be revised and the collection system must be greatly improved. The only way to improve the collection system is to obtain a small army of assessors who would go door-to-door. Fetherman agrees that it is extremely difficult to collect the tax.

Merry-go-round

Mr. President

MIAMI BEACH — Late at night, as Richard Nixon sleeps, he occasionally has a peculiar experience. "I have a feeling," he has told friends, "that I have something to tell the president. Then I suddenly shake myself awake and realize I am the president."

Few can blame Nixon if he sometimes must pinch himself to make sure his conquest of the White House hasn't been all a dream. Only a decade ago, after all, he lost the governorship of California and announced bitterly that he was through with politics. He even signed a pledge to his wife that he would never run for office again.

But it was a promise he couldn't keep. Now, after his first term in the White House, Nixon appears to be headed for the most smashing Republican victory of the century.

GOP strategists confide, indeed, that only one major obstacle lies in the way of a Nixon landslide in November. Not the economy. Not the war. It's Nixon's robot-like personality.

The President, with his sloping nose, jowls that he seems to rearrange like putty to project a mood, his tendency to sweat under the hot TV lights and his marionette hand gestures, is not particularly appealing to the voters.

His campaign managers, therefore, have hired Wolper Productions, one of the best documentary film firms in the business, to humanize Richard Nixon on film at the Republican convention.

Real Nixon

But what is the real Nixon like? He is a very private person who once said: "You can't confide in anyone about your personal plans, your personal feelings."

The private Nixon, we have learned from intimates, is a warm, shy, sensitive man who could easily wake up wondering whether he was President.

He is a devoted family man, who permits his daughters to intrude freely upon the presidency. Not long ago, Nixon was deep in a foreign policy discussion with his top advisors when the phone rang. He spent several minutes on the phone carefully explaining a Vietnam problem.

"That was Julie," said the president after he hung up.

He is considerate, indeed, to all the people who are close to him, even his valet, Manolo Sanchez. During a worrisome night after the Kent State tragedy, Sanchez accompanied the president on his famous midnight wanderings about the memorials of Washington.

They wound up at the Capitol Building where Nixon ordered a cleaning woman to let them into the House of Representatives. From the back of the chamber, Nixon applauded as Sanchez slipped into the Speaker's chair.

The president dislikes personal confrontation, hates to ask favors of people and almost never applies political pressure. He leaves this to others less soft-hearted.

Remarkably self-disciplined, he seldom shows anger. Then it is usually a cold, frowning anger, not the lava-like outbursts of former President Lyndon Johnson.

Occasionally, Nixon will erupt for a moment, but it quickly passes. "Dammit," he exploded the other day after learning the Justice Department hadn't carried out a presidential order, "when I give an order, I expect it to be obeyed."

He jammed a buzzer on his desk, explained his irritation to an aide and directed: "Find out who is responsible. If (my instructions) aren't carried out in 48 hours, I want the responsible people fired."

But this was a rare show of emotion. Far more typical is the cool, calculating political poker player who could match China's Chou En-lai in impassivity.

The two leaders spoke in normal tones during their secret negotiations in Peking. But when one wanted to make an important point, he lowered rather than raised his voice. Each knew the other would be more impressed with restraint than bombast.

Nixon has an extremely orderly mind. He has even set aside Wednesdays as the day for serious thinking. On Wednesdays, he keeps his calendar relatively free of appointments to allow time to meditate and ponder and study.

The president likes every problem reduced to writing, with every available option spelled out.

He emerges from these study sessions deeply informed on the nation's problems. But he lacks a feel for the human undercurrents.

Since he has studied every possible argument his critics could raise, he feels it useless to listen to them repeat the same points. He understands the plaints, therefore, if not the passions of his opponents.

The subject that animates him is politics. During a political discussion, an aide made some point about logically developing an argument. Responded the President: 'No, no, you're treating politics like prose. Politics isn't prose; politics is poetry."

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Blimp

Airships, or dirigibles, were developed along two main lines of construction: the rigid type, in which a frame maintains the shape of the gas envelope; and the nonrigid type, in which the pressure of the gas maintains the envelope's shape.

During World War I the British used a small, nonrigid type dirigible. Because of the collapsible nature of the gas envelope, the British referred to these airships as "limp dirigibles" or "limps."

The most common model the British used was designated "Type B". The "B" was combined with "limp," giving us the name "blimp" for a nonrigid airship.

Tarantella

There is a large, hairy spider that is called a "tarantula" because it used to abound in Taranto, Italy.

From the 15th through the 17th centuries Southern Europe at times was swept by epidemics of a disease which caused its victims to dance hysterically. The disease was called "tarantism," because it supposedly was caused by the bite of a tarantula.

From the gyrations of those suffering from tarantism a lively folk dance arose. Since the folk dance was based on gyrations supposedly caused by the bite of the tarantula, it was called a "tarantella."

Area meat prices rise

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Food prices, especially meats, were up an average of four tenths of a per cent from June to July in this area, the U.S. Labor Department said Tuesday.

According to the Labor Department, the price index for the Philadelphia area stands at 2.7 per cent higher than last year. The figures, the department said, were in line with the trend of 11 of the last 12 years in which prices have risen in July.

Retail prices for meats were higher, particularly pork and beef. On the average, pork roasts and whole hams were up seven and eight cents a pound. Hamburger held its increase to one cent a pound.

Prices for fruits, vegetables and meats also were up as much as 4.4 per cent in the Scranton area in June, the department said.

The 4.4 per cent boost was for fruits and vegetables while meats, along with fish and poultry, were up by 3.4 per cent.

The Labor Department said a typical increase was the price of pork chops, up 14 cents a pound.

A housewife in Scranton who five years ago paid $10 for a basket of food now pays $12.34 for the same basket, the department said.

Berrigan sentence promised

HARRISBURG (UPI) — A federal judge Tuesday promised to sentence the Rev. Philip Berrigan in September, ending a five-month delay in closing of the Harrisburg Seven trial.

The Roman Catholic priest and Sister Elizabeth McAlister, a New York City nun, were convicted last April of illegally smuggling letters in and out of prison.

Trial Judge R. Dixon Herman has been deliberating post-trial motions since that time.

Berrigan's brother, the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, fasting here to protest the delay said Herman had promised a defense attorney he would sentence Philip in September.

"We had asked for sentencing by Sept. 1 so Philip could go before the parole board later in the month but the judge refused," the gray-haired priest said.

"He claimed the docket was full. But we really believe he is under political pressure to keep Phil in prison."

The two brothers were convicted of destroying draft records in Maryland in 1968. Daniel was parolled last February, but Philip's request was denied pending the outcome of the Harrisburg Seven trial.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

For people arriving in the Poconos for vacations this past weekend, there couldn't have been more perfect weather, which, for the very same reason made it very hard to leave, especially for the children.

The river itself, glittering in the morning breeze, placid as a mirror in the late afternoon, reflecting the hills and trees, broken only by the twin trail of ducks, swimming up river, or the leap of a huge muskellunge.

Peter's first big fish biting and then getting away as he hopelessly tangled the line trying to reel in. Jennifer's magic island growing during the week from a few stones above water to a sizable peninsula and the newborn kittens at a friends' house just opening their eyes.

Friends — the tearful partings from Eric and Brenda and Laura and Jennie and Marguerite and Eloise and — and —. Bare feet and mud pies, swimming and rowing, gathering stones and throwing them to hear the splash. The moon on the water, and the sudden chill after the sun had gone down.

No wonder, Pam was coaxing "Please, may we take the river to our house in Devon, mommy, please —." Well they are taking many happy memories back, anyway.

And the local group who left on Sunday for the Olympics in Munich, Germany, were building up some memories in advance with a get-acquainted party with other Olympic-bound travelers in an airport hotel before taking off on Monday.

ESHS Band Festival date set

EAST STROUDSBURG — The annual summer band festival of East Stroudsburg High School, sponsored by the Band Mothers, will be held Aug. 28 beginning at 6 p.m. and lasting until all hours.

The three bands, elementary, junior and senior, will entertain plus the senior majorettes. Refreshments will be available.

Events and booths for the entertainment of all ages have been scheduled: fish pond, bean bag toss, pound-the-nail, treasure chest, football toss, white elephant table, hay rides and many others.

Rain date is Aug. 29.

Wileys visit on island in Puget Sound

EAST STROUDSBURG — Kenneth and Beatrice Wiley of 84 Brown St., East Stroudsburg have returned from a six weeks vacation during which they visited their daughter, Mrs. June Kinnan and her husband, a minister, in Lansing, Mich., and Mr. Wiley's brother, Howard B. Wiley and his wife Boots Walton Wiley on San Juan Island, Puget Sound in the State of Washington.

Howard Wiley, a graduate of Stroudsburg High School in the class of 1932, retired on July 17 from Lockheed Aircraft Corp. in Burbank, Calif. after 29 years in the research laboratory. He is an engineering graduate of the University of Texas, El Paso, Texas, and spent two years as geologist in the mining industry in Southern Arizona before joining Lockheed.

His wife, Boots Wiley, is the daughter of Ephraim Walton now of Miami Springs, Fla., and was graduated from East Stroudsburg High School in the class of 1931.

They have retired to San Juan Island, which is a two-hour ferry ride from Washington or Canada's British Columbia. The visiting Wileys were enthusiastic about the island which has 2,000 inhabitants, historical spots dating from the days when it was a Hudson Bay Post, as well as golf courses, salmon fishing, rabbit hunting, theater and schools.

The average year-round temperature is 49 with less than 80 days of precipitation. The Howard Wiley's address is Route I Box 49 B, Friday Harbor, Washington, 98250.

Calls rehearsal

STROUDSBURG — A rehearsal in preparation for the district meeting of the Rebekah Lodges of the county has been called by Helen Setzer, district deputy president. The rehearsal will be held Thursday at the Rachel Brodhead Rebekah meeting at 8 in the Odd Fellows Hall.

CANADENSIS — The women of St. Bernadette's Catholic Church, Canadensis, are sponsoring a Flea Market, and bazaar on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 25 and 26 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Dealers are invited. There will be antiques, collectables, clothing, gift items and coffee shop fare.

Yacht Club ladies luncheon

HAWLEY — A luncheon party at the Ruffed Grouse in South Sterling was the midweek event of the Women's Assn. of the Lake Wallenpaupack Yacht Club on Wednesday, Aug. 9.

Following the luncheon the group had an afternoon of bridge at the home of Mrs. Lorimer Brown, Angels.

Lawn sale for La Leche

EAST STROUDSBURG — A lawn sale is being sponsored by La Leche Leagues of Stroudsburg and Pocono Mountains on Saturday, Aug. 26 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Carlton Perry, 405 White Birch St., East Stroudsburg.

Baked items will be available as well as white elephants, usable clothing and what-nots.

Linda Hertzschuch bride

Mrs. David Lee Buza
(Arnolds Studio)

STROUDSBURG — Miss Linda Ruth Hertzschuch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hertzschuch of Stroudsburg was married at 4:30 p.m., Aug. 19 in the First Presbyterian Church, Stroudsburg, to David Lee Buza, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Buza of Pittsburgh.

Rev. Ronald H. Rathje officiated at the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

She wore a gown of white organza in empire style with scoop neckline and cap sleeves of Alencon lace. A pale pink organza sash ended in a bow and streamers in the back. The full A-line skirt swept into a chapel length train. Both were edged with a border of pleated pink organza and appliques of lace. She wore a scalloped cap of Alencon lace trimmed with pink satin ribbons and a triple tiered veil ending in a cathedral train. She carried a cascade of pink asters. white roses and ferns.

Mrs. George Hertzschuch of St. Augustine Beach, Fla., sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of strawberry pink satin with scoop neckline, full butterfly sleeves and a deep flounce at the headline, and a sash of pale pink ending in a bow with streamers down the back. She carried one large pink glamelia and wore a crescent of fresh flowers in her hair.

The bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Oyer, Miss Margaret Jayne Kennedy, Mrs. Raymond Tatko all of Philadelphia. Miss Kennedy and Mrs. Tatko are sisters and were sorority sisters of the bride.

O Lansing Schill, niece of the bride was flower girl and Allan Buza Jr., nephew of the bridegroom, was ring-bearer.

George Hertzschuch of St. Augustine Beach, Fla., brother of the bride, was best man. Ushers were Charles Buza, Richard Buza and Allan Buza, all brothers of the bridegroom, of Pittsburgh.

Two large bouquets of pink gladiola and white pompons flanked the alter.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length gown of pink Alencon lace bordered in pink peau de soie and a corsage of pink glamelias. The bridegrooms mother wore a long gown of green chiffon with a center panel of pale green with matching accessories. She also wore a corsage of glamelias.

The reception and dinner were held in the gardens and ballroom of Pocono Manor Inc. The bridal table was decorated with pink gladiolas and white asters. Music was provided by Tommy Cullen.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parkhurst Kickerson, great uncle and great aunt of the bride.

After a wedding trip to Paris, France, the couple will make their home in State College.

The bride was graduated from The Pennsylvania State University in December with a B.S. in art education. She was a member of Alpha Xi Delta, sorority. Her husband who served in the Army in Vietnam as a sergeant, is a senior at the Pennsylvania State University.

The bridegroom's parents entertained the wedding party and out of town guests at a dinner at the Penn Stroud Hilton the night before the wedding.

Before her marriage the bride was feted in Pittsburgh at a shower attended by the bridegroom's relatives and friends, and a surprise shower was given for her by Mrs. Walter McClelland and Miss Nancy McClelland of Stroudsburg.

The Slim Gourmet

Diets are worth it

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Being fat is:

* staying home on the day of the physical exams rather than face a public weigh-in.
* being told you have a "pretty face." Slim girls with pretty faces are simply "pretty girls."
* being the last one picked for the volleyball team.
* going to your senior prom with a blind date.
* having a skinny salesclerk try to sell you a frumpy tent because it's "slimming." (Half-size styles look the way they do because store managers won't buy them — unless they look like half-size styles!)
* being mistaken as your husband's mother.
* being mistaken as your mother's sister.
* being mistaken as your mother's mother!
* being steered to a sturdy chair.
* wearing a hip-hugger belt around your waist.
* lying on your driver's license — or job application, college questionnaire, camp health form or any other piece of paper that askes your weight.
* ripping the hammock (the canvas was weather-weakened, but who'll believe that!)
* never eating anything without hearing comments, on the calories: "Don't worry about this, it's not very fattening" or, "Good but it's loaded with calories!"
* always being described to strangers in terms of your weight. Slim people are usually identified by hair color or eyes. But a fat person with green hair and plaid eyes would still be described as "somewhat chucky" or "abit on the heavy side, with green sideburns."

Being fat also is:

* owning lots of hats, jewelry, ties, scarves — but no dresses or suits! Hats and jewelry are easy to shop for.
* not owning a full-length mirror, only teeny eye-level ones.
* spending a fortune on your hair.
* being ashamed to eat in public. Is the apple pie on your cafeteria tray enormously amusing to the other skinnies in line? So, too, are the potato chips or frozen pizzas in your supermarket basket.
* feeling like an outlandish outlander in the junior miss dress department. What words can you find to explain to your slim friends why you don't want to go shopping with them?
* being taken advatage of. Why is it that skinnies have an unwritten rule that it's okay to impose on fatties?
* being discriminated against — by teachers, personnel managers, college admissions officers, camp counselors, bosses, even doctors. In the thin world the prejudice against poundage is more than skin deep. It's not simply that the fat person doesn't look the part — extra weight is taken as evidence of a lack of energy, ambition or moral fiber!
* never being taken seriously.

How about you? What's your pet peeve about the way the thin world treats the LARGE majority?

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — The David Ladds split . . . Nancy Kwan's getting her decree from David Geiler . . . Silvana Mangano and Dino de Laurentis are grandparents again via daughter Veronica De Benedetti . . . Songwriter Sammy Cahn (2nd Time Around, Call Me Irresponsible etc.) is moving into the same building as his "bank" — Tony Bennett's apartment house on E. 68th. . . . Shipowner C. Y. Tung who lost the old Queen Liz (he has a $10 million claim with Lloyd's of London) when it sank in Hong Kong Harbor has a multi-million-buck bid in for the erstwhile U.S.' biggest-ship, the United States.

Carol White, who was supposed to marry actor Paul Burke (they were together two years), instead wed N.Y. psychiatrist Stuart Lerner . . . Screenwriter Eleanor Perry was asked if she'd lost some weight: "Yes, 185 pounds — my ex-husband," she snipped . . . Ex-hubby Frank's in Venice where his new love is the prettiest magazine editor in all the slicks.

Concert troupe of "Jesus Christ Superstar" folded in Vegas among mutterings the Mafia tried to muscle in . . . Former AGVA (nightclub performers union) Pres. Jackie Bright and agent Hy Einhorn slugged it out . . . Jeanne Moreau's new flick's about a 40-year-old woman madly in love with a 20 year-old lad. Her dates with junior co-star Julian Negulesco look teddibly parrallel . . . Louise's restaurant heir Bob Jorio took his wife and five kids to the country for a weekend, and vandalizing burglars weren't satisfied to heist two color TV sets, almost $5,000 worth of wife Peggy's finest silver, 300 silver dollars he's hoarded etc. — the cruel cowards ripped and tore everything in sight.

Oscar Levant's death takes away an old close friend. We kept hoping through his endless mental lapses that he'd get better and return to TV, where he was one of its best and ruthlessly honest wits . . . When Jack Paar asked Oscar what he thought of Eddie Fischer leaving Debbie Reynolds to tramp around with Liz Taylor, Oscar replied, "How high can you stoop?" . . . Our sympathy and prayers to Oscar's miraculously patient June for her steadfast loyalty through the toughest row any wife we've ever known had to hoe.

Pierre Hotel owner Bob Dowling's very ill . . . Fred Astaire singing "I Used To Be Color Blind" on the Dick Cavettcast reminded us of a midnight in Lindy's years ago when Irving Berlin joined us and we remarked admiringly about the song which was on the fabulous $55 album of every song Fred sang on stage or screen. "Not good," Irving shrugged. Very good, we insisted. Irving's explanation: "It didn't sell!"

Bill McCaffrey is Mary Martin's agent. Berlin tried to get her for his musical "Miss Liberty." Bill said "Mr. Berlin, I'll talk to her about it." "You can call me Irving if you do, Bill, and if you get her, you can call me Izzy."

The McGovern toppers are trying to discourage emphasis on Sargent Shriver's suddenly muted opposition to abortion, one of the Dem. nominee's campaign planks . . . "French Connection" Oscar-winning director Bill Friedkin dropped $6,000 in the recent Gore Vidal flop, "An Evening with Richard Nixon." What comes of putting your money where your politics are (is?).

The Scots pipe-major's record "Amazing Grace" caterwauled to the top of the British hit parade, so the Royal Military College band has its own new LP, "Sandhurst Plays Lennon & McCartney" . . . There's gold in them heels: permanent flick villain Vincent Price signed a fat new longplay pact with AIP which produces his "Dr. Phibes" films . . . Film grosses are up; "The Godfather" gave audiences an offer they couldn't refuse.

Our Roman journalist friend Gino Corigliano witnessed this at the Rome jetport a few days after Israel's terrible Lod Airport murders and security was tight. Gino saw a detective stop a tall, attractive Scandinavian girl, talk to her a moment, open her bag and pull out a pistol, thereupon arresting her of course. Gino asked the detective how possibly he could suspect such a young lady amid the hordes of similar ragazzi parading about Leonardo da Vinci airport. "What do you do?" the detective asked Gino. "I'm a journalist," Gino replied. The detective asked him in return, "How do you write?"

At least one Ari Onassis employee hasn't written a book about him and Jackie and swears he won't: Costas Gounaris, manager of the Sea Fare of the Aegean restaurant, formerly chief navigator on Onassis' yacht The Christina . . . 79th St. saloonkeeper Mike Malkin swears on a pile of money he'll open his Stork Club this fall. Mike's pals murmur furtively his big backer is a midnight talk show host.

Redd Foxx signed for double his last-year "Sanford & Son" salary . . . Marlo Thomas insists she and longplay romance Herb Gardner aren't hitched. But they're together more than newlys . . . Jim Skakel started singing "Raindrops Are Falling on My Head" down in the chic depths of Raffles and it was appropriate: a busted pipe went waterfalling across the whole bar for half an hour. What a chaser!

"Nash at Nine" is the title of a fall show the whole family will enjoy: it's based on Ogden Nash's writings. A tryout of the material for a family-sample crowd enchanted them all . . . Tom Poston, Karen Morrow, and George Irving will perform . . . Reginald Owen, marvelous 84-year-old who romped through "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" right through closing night (forced to shutter by star Phil Silvers' stroke), waited until next day to break his foot. He's hospitalized.

Here's the Manhattan townhouse market: Elaine May's had her enormous manse on the market a year. No takers . . . Exchange deal: Gold Coin owner Bill Chan supped at Vesuvio's where he discovered owner Tony Casciola had passed him on the way over and was inhaling moo goo gai pan at Bill's place . . . Here's a paradox: Lamston's five-and-ten stores weighing machines charge a nickel — luxurious Saks 5th Ave.'s only a penny.

Ralph Richardson and Steve McQueen are high-power motorcycle freaks. But they're both scared of horses . . . McGovern's worst worry: that Lindsay will campaign for him . . . Peter Gennaro is the best modern choreographer and dancer around, and his new Radio City Music Hall production is a sight for nostalgic eyes: "Everybody Tap" it's titled, and everyone does tap indeed . . . Including a 14-year-old whiz named Patrick Roddy . . . It's a real American art form taking hold again, particularly in Europe, most especially England — and tap schools are reopening in the U.S. after years of silence.

"Little Mother" is a new flick about a "nameless" Latin country's deposed dictator's power-fevered wife. The dictator of the film lives in Spain. And Franco in real life is pulling strings to try and get the U.S. State Department and Motion Picture organizations to cool it . . . Sam Peckinpah (famous for screen violence) in his Playboy interview heaps even more verbal violence on his contemporary filmakers such as Marty Ransohoff, Ross Hunter, Peter Bogdanovich and Francis Ford Coppola.

Youth takes over

All you people over 30 out there . . . and you know who you are . . . are taking a beating these days from the crayon and coke crowd.

A pre-teen in Philadelphia is writing an advice column for the daily newspaper. A 16-year-old in the East made a bundle on the stock market until someone thought to ask his age. A youngster testified before a government committee protesting vitamin commercials on Saturday morning children's shows. And a 17-year-old tennis player from Ft. Lauderdale beat a 30-year-old champion.

I don't know what you were doing between the ages of 10 and 17, but I spent puberty scraping bubble gum off my upper lip and basting my acne.

In Denmark, an organized group, headed by a 10-year-old and an eight-year-old have even issued a Civil rights manifesto. (I thought manifesto was an Italian greeting for "How's your Mother?")

In it, they demanded a four-day school week, more TV movies, the right to eat only dishes they liked and not having to kiss relatives who did not appeal to them.

If that isn't enough to make you take the training wheels off your shopping cart nothing is. As I was saying to my neighbor, Margaret, "Your kid got a hit record going or anything?"

"He's unemployed this summer, but in the fall Buster is getting ready for the Space and Aeronautical Science Fair sponsored by the Pee Wee Nuclear Physicists. Last year, he won the Wehner von Braun award for perfecting a fuel for submarines in the 5-year-old division. What about your boy?"

"He spent the morning explaining a Woody Allen joke to me that I couldn't understand," I said.

"Aren't kids nowadays incredible?" she asked. "I mean the way they are actively involved in our society at such an early age. I suppose you heard about Juanita's boy? He's directing a movie that is supposed to be released soon."

"I bet she'll be so proud to go to the Premiere with him."

"Oh he can't go. He isn't old enough to see it."

As we sat there drinking coffee, it occurred to us that youngsters held their own art exhibits, race car competition, had their own beauty pageants, outnumbered adults on Juvenile Jury 5-1, recorded their own records and knew more about sex than any 30-year-old had a right to know.

"You know Margaret." I said, "We'd better watch out or we're going to become obsolete. After all, we're more experienced, older and smarter than kids. Maybe we should think about a manifesto."

"Mother's fine," she said biting her lip, "It's the kids I'm worried about."

Coast Guard sets opening

STROUDSBURG — Chief Michael G. Snowden has announced there are 50 openings available in Northeastern Pennsylvania for enlistment in the U.S. Coast Guard for the remainder of the calendar year.

Opening lead — jack of hearts.

Dear Mr. Becker: I have read a lot of bridge books in my day, and zillions of bridge columns too, and the one thing that impresses itself on me is that most of these writers don't know what they're talking about.

They advocate bids and plays I can't fathom. For example, they think it's best to lead from weakness to strength, but my experience tells me it's better to lead from strength to weakness.

I played this hand the other day and held the South cards. Most players would swear it is impossible to make four spades with this layout, since declarer apparently must lose two spades, a heart, two diamonds and a club, but I can tell you quite frankly that this is an obsession on their part on how to play a hand.

West led the heart jack and I went up with the ace. In line with my theory I played the four of hearts next and was not surprised to win it with the ten. Some people will say the reason East didn't play the king was because he was afraid I had the singleton five, but I personally think it was due to his unfamiliarity with my advanced style of play.

I then led the three of clubs a play you won't find in any book, and West, confused by my technique, let me win with the jack.

Next I again demonstrated the beauty of my methods when I led the five of spades from dummy. East naturally played low and my seven forced the ace.

There is no use in my going on with this recitation because, as you can see, my king of spades later caught the queen and all I lost was a trump and two diamonds, thus making four spades. I hope you see what I mean. Sincerely yours, I.X. Hail.

Hospital gets $160 at shows

ANALOMINK — A total of $160 has been turned over to the General Hospital of Monroe County as the result of two summer ice skating exhibitions at the Pocono Ice-a-Rama.

The programs were sponsored by Charles Poalillo, owner of the indoor ice rink at Penn Hills Lodge. Pupils of the Pocono Summer Skating Camp, directed by Mrs. Anne Magagna, staged the exhibitions.

The 11 skaters included 16-year-old Debbie Poalillo, of Analomink; Beth Wyckoff, 13, Shawnee-on-the-Delaware; Maryann Zwick, nine, Analomink; and Holly Maier, 14, White Haven.

The seven other girls, ranging in age from 8 to 16, are from the Washington, D.C. area.

The summer skating camp was organized last March to accomodate a number of figure skaters from Washington, where skating rinks operate only five months of the year.

The size of the camp ranges from 15 to 20 girls throughout the summer, none of whom had ever participated in a summer skating program before.

The exhibitions provided the children with an opportunity to perform before an audience and thus become less self-conscious while skating.

Relief money recovered

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — The State Department of Public Welfare has announced $46,570.68 in public assistance money was recovered by the state from relief recipients in Monroe County during the just ended fiscal year.

The sum marks an increase from the $44,109.91 recovered during the preceding year.

The recovered money represents reimbursement and restitution payments made on the basis of misinformation, failure to report conditions that would make recipients ineligible for public assistance.

In the case of the money recovered from Monroe County recipients during the fiscal year, $35,442.14 represented reimbursement and $8,667.77 restitution.

As a point of comparison, five years ago recovery from county relief recipients totaled $22,407.26, of which $19,657.37 was in the form of reimbursement and $2,749.89 in restitution.

In essence, over the five-year span, recovery of relief monies has climbed from $22,407.26 to $46,570.68 in Monroe County.

In Pike County, $14,996.93 was recovered by the department during the just ended fiscal year.

27 pets sheltered at SPCA

STROUDSBURG — Twenty-seven animals are currently being sheltered at the Monroe County branch of the Pennsylvania SPCA, Wild Animal Farm Road, Stroudsburg R.D. 1.

The following pets are available for adoption:

"Nell" — tricolored female Beagle, three years old.

"Butch" — tan male Hound, three years old.

"Tillie" — Poodle-Airdale female, three months old, black.

Two part Schnauzer pups, male and female, white and tan, three months old.

Two shepherd-Poodles, black and tan, male and female, nine weeks old.

Two part Beagles, both males, one all tan and one white with tan markings, eight weeks old.

Also available for adoption are eight domestic kittens, four between eight and nine weeks and four three months old, assorted colors.

Two fluffly part Persian kittens, three month old females, one calico and one gray with white.

Puppies have had their distemper inoculations. Cats and kittens are trained to litter pans.

Eight lost dogs are being held for a week for owners to reclaim them before they are made available to new homes. They are the following pets:

A year old male part hound, white with tan markings.

A two-year-old female part Schnauzer that was injured when found and has had veterinary care.

Shepherd-Elkhound male, a year old, black and gray.

Schools receive $9,589

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — A total of $9,589.68 in state funds — representing a "balance" of 30 per cent of the total due — is being paid by the State Department of Education to four Monroe County school districts covering part of the costs of conducting special classes for handicapped pupils during the 1970-71 school year.

The 30 percent payments (70 per cent was paid in May) are being made to these school districts as follows:

East Stroudsburg Area School District — $3,025.99; Pleasant ValleySchool District — $2,112.85; Pocono Mountain School District — $1,246.93 and Stroudsburg Area School District — $3,203.91.

As for Pike County's one school district, Delaware Valley School District, a total of $2,635.27 is being paid as their share of the "balance".

It was pointed out by the department that any school district not on the current list had been previously paid for this purpose or will be included in a subsequent list.

State funds paid to school districts under the program for handicapped pupils cover the difference in cost of teaching a pupil in special classes and a normal pupil in regular classes.

Arthritis fund campaign passes half-way mark

STROUDSBURG — William V. Nixon, 1972 fund raising chairman of the Monroe County Unit of the Arthritis Foundation, has announced that $3,600 has been collected so far in a campaign to raise a total of $6,000.

The announcement was made at the county unit's regular board meeting.

The funds raised so far have been the result of a county wide direct mailing and solicitation of the members of the board of directors.

It was also announced that the second phase of the campaign, the house-to-house drive, will be conducted in mid-October.

In the interim, coin canisters will be placed at various locations throughout the county.

Door-to-door canvassers will soon be enlisted in the Stroudsburgs by Mrs. William Miller.

It was also announced that the next arthritis clinic will be held at the General Hospital of Monroe County on Sept. 12.

The free clinic is the Monroe County Unit's principal service and is held every two months.

The clinic serve some 60 patients per year with a current age range of 15 to 94.

Referral to the clinic is made through the patient's family physician.

Police confiscate pot plants

WOODDALE — State police from the Stroudsburg barracks Tuesday morning confiscated 1,000 marijuana plants found growing on abandoned property approximately one mile from Rte. 447 in Price Township.

Troopers Alfred Drozdowski and Kenneth Minehart, accompanied by Monroe County District Attorney James F. Marsh, uprooted the plants and bagged them for transportation to a spot where they will be destroyed.

Averaging three to four feet in height, police estimated the plants had a street value of $20,000.

Police further indicated the haul was one of the biggest confiscations made by law enforcement agencies in the Monroe County area.

The action was the result of a lengthy investigation by the Area II Strike Force of the Pennsylvania State Police.

Police spokesmen said no arrests were made in the case, but that the matter is still under investigation.

Manor employes seeking $2,000 across board hike

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A $2,000 across the board increase in salaries for unionized Pleasant Valley Manor employes was laid on the negotiating table Tuesday as the union and the county came together for contract talks.

In a cordial two-hour session initiating the talks, special labor attorney John Hayes, of Allentown, read over the proposed 19-page contract in the presence of a union negotiating team and Lawrence Butz, Manor Administrator.

Absent from the county's negotiating committee was county solicitor Elmer D. Christine.

After reviewing the contract and receiving clarification on some sections of the proposed pact from Ernest Rewolinski of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, Hayes said the county would present counter proposals within two weeks.

The county's attorney told Rewolinski the $2,000 pay hike will be priced out to see what the amount means in terms of percentage of the employes' current salaries.

Another matter Hayes promised to look into was the issue of employes dismissed during the initial stages of worker organization at Pleasant Valley Manor.

Four employes at the county home were laid off while the workers were organized in the Pleasant Valley Manor Employes Organization — a pre-union attempt by county home workers to reach a written agreement with the county commissioners.

Will report back

Hayes said he did not know about the current status of the dismissed employes, but indicated he would have something to report at the next meeting with the union.

Reinstatement of the four has been a concern to unionized employes throughout the formal organizing process.

On matters within the body of the proposed contract, Hayes questioned several proposals, asking Butz what is now being provided for the Manor employes.

He was told the proposed request for 14 holidays a year with pay compares to the present eight, accumulation of sick days on the basis of one and a half per month of service compares with eight annually and the workers now receive no major medical coverage and are on a contributary retirement plan.

The contract proposes the county pay for medical and life insurance and a retirement plan. No severance pay for medical and life insurance and a retirement plan. No severance pay provision now exists for the Manor employes. The contract calls for one.

Hayes asked Rewolinski if a section in the proposed pact relating to sub-contracting would be relevant to the county's plan to transfer patients to a private nursing home.

Under pressure from the state Department of Labor and Industry to insure the old section of the Manor complies with safety regulations, the county has begun transferring patients to a private nursing home.

Eight transfers made

Butz said eight of an expected 25 transfers have already been made to Stroud Manor in East Stroudsburg. He said the county is considering other private facilities for transfers.

Rewolinski said the sub-contracting clause does not apply to the transfer situation.

While reading the contract, Hayes said the union "hadn't missed much" in its proposals.

Later he quipped, "I like this union. Can you give me a membership card?"

Hayes said some of the questions posed by the employes on the union negotiating team would have to be answered by the county solicitor.

He said Christine would be at the next meeting with the union.

'Judicare' program offered by Monroe County lawyers

STROUDSBURG — At the request of four members of the Monroe County Bar Association, the state Department of Public Welfare is considering Monroe County for an experimental "judicare" program.

In a meeting with the Secretary of the Department of Public Welfare Tuesday, Attorneys Detleff Hansen, John Pentz, Maxwell Cohen and Richard Deetz proposed the innovative means of bringing legal services to the indigent in civil cases.

Judicare as a means of providing legal aid to the poor is currently used in Wisconsin, but is not provided in Pennsylvania which has only one program for legal aid.

In the Commonwealth, public funds are now available for a conventional legal aid system, providing a full time staff attorney to give legal services for the poor.

Funding for the full time lawyer is shared by the Commonwealth and the local community.

Under the proposed judicare program legal aid is provided along the guidelines of the medical service program now being implemented by the welfare department.

Under the experimental judicare system persons qualified for welfare sponsored legal services would be issued a card after qualifying with the local welfare office in the basis of need.

By using the legal aid card indigent persons would be eligible for legal services in civil cases and could be represented by participating members of the local bar association.

Mechanisim for the transfer of the legal aid card into legal representation is not yet in concrete form, according to Deetz who is chairman of the legal aid committee for the Monroe County Bar Association.

Private attorneys who provide service to the poor will be reimbursed by the state department of welfare according to a schedule for compensation.

Deetz said the rates of compensation would probably be less than the going rate for legal services. He said the bar does not anticipate the judicare program would be a profit-making enterprise.

Advantages of the judicare program over a full time legal aid lawyer, according to Deetz, would include more freedom of choice for the indigent, less chance of the legal aid being handled by a young and inexperienced attorney and possibly better legal service to the poor in rural areas.

In a rural county judicare would probably better meet the needs of the fewer indigent legal cases, whereas full time offices serve the greater demand in urban areas.

Deetz said roughly 90 per cent of the cases handled by legal aid societies are individual matters and class actions are more prevalent in urban areas where fulltime legal aid societies can engage in broad law reform activities.

Supporting the county attorneys in their request to the welfare department were state Rep. Russell Kowalyshyn (D-138th) and former attorney general Fred Speaker who is chairman-elect of the Pennsylvania Bar Association Committee for Service to the Public.

No concrete commitment from the welfare department was made in the session in Harrisburg, but the request for judicare is an innovation in the Commonwealth's legal aid formula and it will be reviewed for a possible experimental program in Monroe County.

Teacher contract nears wire

STROUDSBURG — Negotiations between teachers and school directors in the Stroudsburg Area School District appear to be heading for the wire with no announced settlement until the Aug. 31 contract deadline.

School Board President Donald Stone said Tuesday no information will be made public until the final day of the current contract.

Teachers in the district have been notified that their last check for the current contract period has been paid.

In separate meetings tonight, both teachers and directors will be going over a special fact finding report submitted by state appointed fact finder Dr. Morrison Handsaker.

Stone said the meeting of the directors will be to discuss the report which was due Aug. 21. Handsaker was appointed by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board to look into the contract talks when an apparent deadlock developed July 17.

If the school board does not find the report acceptable, one teachers' representative has stated his belief a strike may take place in the district.

The teachers will be reviewing the report the same night as the closed school directors meeting.

A public statement on the acceptance or rejection of the report is not officially due until Aug. 31. Stone said directors will not announce their intentions until that date because negotiations may take place around the findings in the report.

If the report is not found to be satisfactory to either party, the teachers may move for binding arbitration. School directors rarely agree to arbitration in Pennsylvania, according to a teacher spokesman.

As it now stands, no one on either side is predicting school will open on schedule in the Stroudsburg district.

West End event set for crowds

Fair packs full schedule

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — Even if you've been one of those select West End residents who has been able to attend the last 50 West End fairs, this year's week-long event, scheduled to open officially on Tuesday, may contain some new surprises for you.

With some extensive renovations at the main food stand at the fair, private caterer Paul Heck is making it possible for fair goers to have dinner under a carpeted terrace and get soup and sandwiches through a special express window.

New maidway stands have been added to the gorve area; the Western Pocono Jaycees have initiated the innovative idea of testing fair goers' pool shooting ability.

In addition, a tractor pulling contest, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday night, has been added to the annual event's major activities. And the Yogi Bear show for children will be held during the afternoon and evening on Thursday, Aug. 31.

The Blue Ridge Quartet, which was scheduled to perform last year but was rained out, will appear along with the Mark Four in concert on Friday, September 1.

In addition to the new events, the Pleasant Valley Band and the Mahoning Variety Band will provide musical entertainment for the fair goers respectively on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Horse shows

An open English horse show and the Pocono Trotting Racing Association are scheduled for Wednesday, August 30, the open western horse show will be held on Thursday, and the annual horse pulling contests will be held on Saturday.

In addition, a 4-H horse and pony open youth show will be held on Friday morning, September 1. Dr. Rumsey will perform on Saturday, September 2.

"We expect more peole to attend the fair this year than ever before, said Larry Krome, secretary of the West End Fair Association. "People seem to be taking more of an interest in what's going on out here. The entries are increasing, too. The whole horse barn will be filled with cattle entries this year."

Treasurer of the association Mrs. Alton Dorshimer, said that the fair expected to exhibit a lot more paintings than in previous years, and she added that the number of stands along the midway has already surpassed the number placed there in recent years.

"I think one of our biggest drawing cards here," said Donald Everett, assistant secretary of the association," is our farm equipment. In recent years we have had more equipment on exhibit than the Allentown Fair."

Farm oriented event

Emphasizing that the West End event was lengthened to a five-day fair just last year, Everett said he would describe the week-long festivities as essentially farm oriented.

A lot of people think it is important that we don't have any girly shows here," continued Everett. "They know they can bring their children and their whole family here to enjoy our fair."

Commenting to date that everything at the fair grounds has been "under control" and that all the preparations have "gone smooth," Mrs. Dorshimer said that the majorty of fair goers frequent the Gilbert grounds in the evening after 5 p.m.

"In other years when the fair ran only three days, residents took off from work and would be here the whole time," said Krome. "I still think the people come every day, but they probably don't stay as long."

In further comments, Krome said that the fair attracted a variety of people, but said he had no way of telling if the week-long event was pulling in residents from outlying areas. "We must be pulling in more people," he added, "because the fair is getting bigger every year."

In terms of parking and crowd control the trio of fair directors said they anticipated no problems this year in either area. They commended Monroe County Sheriff Forrest Sebring for handling both areas so expertly in the past.

Although officially opening on Tuesday, August 29, the fair will accept entries for exhibition on Monday evening from 6 to 10 p.m. and Tuesday morning from 7 a.m. to 11 a.m.

58 children transferred

State order closes school

HARRISBURG — The Welfare Department Tuesday ordered the immediate removal of all 58 mentally retarded children from the Ridgeview Center in Hawley.

The action came on the heels of a demand for the closing of the private institution Monday by the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children.

The association claimed because of two accidental deaths in the past several months, the institution was unsafe.

The latest death occurred Sunday night around 7:30 p.m. Louis Novak, 15, of Sharpsburg died as a result of being submerged in a bathtub.

An autopsy performed Monday by Wayne County Coroner Robert Jennings revealed the boy's death was caused by "forcible immersion in water."

Jennings stated Novak also had numerous cuts and bruises all over his body, "some of which were recent, some as much as a week old."

Jennings and Pennsylvania State Police from Honesdale are still investigating the manner of the boy's death. A coroner's hearing or inquest will be held at a later date.

Earlier this year, a 16-year-old student at the school was crushed to death in a garbage compactor while he and playmates were near the vehicle.

Elliot R. Knauer, deputy secretary of welfare for the Northeastern Region, said the action to close Ridgeview Center was taken "because of apparent lack of supervision."

Knauer said the residents had been admitted to the institution under a county-state interim care program, pending admission to a state-owned mental retardation facility.

He said the children will be transferred to another temporary facility, pending assignment to a state institution.

A spokesman for the Hawley institution said all of the students were transferred to the state school in White Haven Tuesday morning.

He denied receiving any orders from the Welfare Department to transfer the children.

"The students were transferred to White Haven until reconstruction progress at the center is completed," he stated.

"We haven't received any orders. The children are merely being transferred while we are rebuilding the plant," he said.

Three hurt in crash

POCONO TOWNSHIP — Three New York residents were slightly injured Tuesday evening in a one-car accident on Route 80, Pocono Township.

Pennsylvania State Police at Mount Pocono reported an auto operated by William Gallagher, Weedsport, N.Y. was traveling east in the right lane when he pulled into the left lane attempting to pass another vehicle.

Gallagher's car ran off the road onto the medial strip, struck an embankment, and came to rest on the median.

Gallagher, his wife, Barbara, and their one-year-old son, Paul, were all taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County, where they were treated and released.

Trooper Michael Kish handled the investigation.

Driver absolved in deaths

WAYMART — No criminal charges will be pressed against a 42-year-old Waymart man, whose auto struck and killed two Philadelphia girls Monday night.

Wayne County Coroner Robert Jennings said an investigation revealed the two thirteen-year-old girls, Maureen Lydon and Teresa Coyle, were "definitely walking in the center of the highway" when the accident occurred.

State police at Honesdale reported the two vacationing girls were walking in the westbound lane of Route 6 near Waymart when they were struck by an eastbound auto operated by Edwin Eldred.

Police said Eldred was attempting to pass another auto pulling a camper when the accident occurred. Eldred's car rolled over and struck two trees, but he escaped injury.

Phone problem hits collector

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mechanical difficulties have caused a temporary delay in the installation of a telephone for the East Stroudsburg tax collector, Mrs. Donna London.

Residents are asked not to call the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Company for information regarding taxes. The public will be notified when the phone is connected.

Bridge traffic increases

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Traffic on the Delaware Water Gap toll bridge during the month of July showed an increase of 7.71 per cent, while revenue increased 4.90 per cent as compared to the month of July, 1971.

619,761 vehicles used the toll bridge during the month to provide a daily average of 19,992 passages. The 619,761 vehicles represent a new record monthly total, surpassing the previous high of 594,153 recorded in August, 1971.

Income for the month totaled $197,431.95, providing a daily average of $6,368.77.

During July, traffic on the Portland-Columbia toll bridge showed an increase of 5.91 per cent, while revenue increased 3.27 per cent as compared to July, 1971.

65,577 vehicles used the toll bridge during July to provide a daily average of 2,115 passages. Income for the month totaled $11,415.10, providing a daily average of $368.23.

Traffic on the Milford-Montague toll bridge during July showed a decrease of 1.30 per cent, while revenue decreased 1.23 per cent as compared to July of 1971.

132,044 vehicles used the toll bridge during the month to provide a daily average of 4,259 passages. Income for the month totaled $22,693.30, a daily average of $732.04.

During the month of July, the Milford-Upper Black Eddy free bridge handled 102,746 vehicles, compared to 102,350 during the month of July a year ago.

The increase of 396 vehicles resulted in an increase of .39 per cent.

Youth trapped in cave-in leaves Nantucket hospital

NATUCKET, Mass. — The 11-year-old Stroudsburg boy who almost dug his own grave in the sands of Natucket has been released from the Nantucket Cottage Hospital where he was taken after the ordeal. There will be no ill effects, the doctor assured his parents.

Spencer Cramer II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cramer of Stroudsburg, was with his family at Mioxes Beach and had dug a four-foot hole in the sand before the sides collapsed, burying him.

With everyone digging frantically, assisted by police who were summoned to the scene, it took 10 minutes to release him from the grip of the sand, and artificial respiration to revive him.

Police Sgt. Paul S. Smith theorized that the fact that the Cramer boy was in a sitting position when the sand caved in on him, creating an air pocket, kept him alive until he was pulled out.

The Cramers will be returning home on Friday.

Fire doused by garden hose

POCONO SUMMIT — An unidentified man with a garden hose extinguished a minor brush fire Tuesday afternoon on a lawn near Pocono Summit Lake.

Fifteen men and three trucks from the Pocono Summit Fire Department responded to the alarm at 3:15 p.m. The firemen arrived at the scene, only to find the 10 by 20 foot area already extinguished.

Rhodesia ousted from Olympic games by IOC

Related stories, pictures, page 13.

MUNICH (UPI) —The International Olympic Committee, in an unprecedented move, Tuesday barred Rhodesia from competing in this year's Games starting Saturday and was immediately blasted by Rhodesian sports officials for "introducing politics" in the sports movement.

The IOC, under pressure from black African nations to oust Rhodesia because of its racial policies, withdrew its invitation to this year's games by a vote of 36 to 31.

"There is no doubt that the Olympics are in the hands of the politicians," said a Rhodesian sports official in Salisbury. "It's a disgrace. This is the end of any pretense by the Olympic body (IOC) that they are motivated by the original Olympic ideals."

In Munich, Grant Stuart, president of Rhodesia's National Olympic Committee, said in a brief statement, "Naturally, we are all bitterly disappointed that we can't compete but we accept the IOC's decision.

"We feel this was entirely a political action. I don't feel it came under the sports category at all."

Rhodesia is a small African country with a population of more than 5 million blacks and less than 300,000 whites. It also was refused an invitation to compete in the 1968 Games at Mexico City but was invited this year under an agreement that met with the approval of its African neighbors.

But less than a week ago, those same neighbors, led by Nigeria and the Congo, demanded Rohodesia be thrown out of the Games or they would walk out. The protesting group included at least 15 African nations plus Cuba, Haiti and Yugoslavia.

The IOC agonized over the question since last week and finally put it to a vote late Tuesday.

Avery Brundage, the 84-year-old president of the IOC who will step down after this year's Games, had taken a strong stand in favor of keeping Rhodesia in the Olympic movement. The vote for ouster of the former British colony thus represented a defeat for Brundage.

Rhodesia last competed in the Olympics in 1964 at Tokyo, but was not invited four years ago under heavy pressure from Africa's black nations.

Last September, though, the IOC voted to extend an invitation for this year's Games, which have cost the host West German Olympic Committee more than $600 million to organize and stage, under a formula which met with the approval of the entire IOC.

The formula called for Rhodesia to compete under its old name of Southern Rhodesia, include blacks on its team and come in under its old status as a British colony.

But what seemed fair to Rhodesia's neighbors a year ago was unacceptable less than a week ago, just as athletes for this year's Olympic Games began arriving in Munich.

The IOC Congress met in three long sessions over the last four days as the pressure began to mount. Faced with standing by its invitation or giving in to the protesters, the IOC backed off.

Brundage, obviously upset at the turn of events, nevertheless thought enough of the situation to make the announcement himself to newsmen.

The point on which the vote turned concerned Rhodesia's attempts to convince the IOC its athletes were Rhodesian citizens and British subjects.

"The important question is settled," Brundage said, adding 70 votes were cast.

Brundage said the question put to the IOC Congress was whether the invitation extended last year to Rhodesia should be honored.

Before Brundage stepped out of the meeting to make his announcement it was obvious Rhodesia was out of the Games, because Nigeria's Abraham Ordia and JeanClaude Ganga of the Congo, who had led the fight for ouster, emerged from the conference room in a warm embrace.

"The Rhodesians could not prove they were Rhodesian citizens and British subjects," Brundage said.

Before Tuesday's marathon session, which began at breakfast and ended after 7 p.m., Ordia said, "It's them or us," while Ganga said, "There can be no compromise on this issue."

The man caught square in the middle of the whole question was Willi Daume, president of the Games Organizing Committee. Pressure was being put on him to throw the Rhodesians out, but Daume said that was something he simply could not do.

"You can't invite people to come and then ask them to go home just before the start," Daume said. "No, I will not consider asking them to leave."

Daume thus never had to face the question under a deadline. The IOC Congress took care of it for him.

Yanks defeated 5-4 on Allen home run

CHICAGO (UPI)—Dick Allen slammed a two-run homer in the fifth inning to lift Chicago to a come-from-behind 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees Tuesday night as the White Sox overcame a 4-0 deficit.

Allen blasted his 31st homer of the season and his 24th at home, which set a club record, far over the centerfield fence after Buddy Bradford had singled to lead off the fifth.

Chicago scored its first three runs in the third on singles by Chuck Brinkman and Walt Williams, a run-scoring double by Buddy Bradford and a two-run single by Mike Andrews.

Dave Lemonds, Rick Gossage and Terry Forster blanked New York on four hits over the final 7 1-3 innings after the Yankees knocked out Stan Bahnsen in the second.

Gossage got the victory and Forster picked up his 21st save.

New York scored two runs in the first inning on a walk to Thurman Munson, a single by Bobby Murcer, an infield out, a passed ball and a double by Ron Blomberg.

Oakland hangs on to lead; Lolich misses 20th victory

DETROIT (UPI)—Joe Rudi, winning pitcher John Odom and Angel Mangual denied Mickey Lolich his 20th victory with home runs Tuesday night to spark the Oakland A's to a 6-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Rudi slammed his 17th homer with a man on in the first, Odom hit his first of the season in the third inning and Mangual belted his fourth with two teammates on in the fifth.

Lolich would have been out of the fifth inning with Mangual never coming to bat but instead of throwing Odom out at first on his sacrifice bunt, he elected to try for George Hendrick and failed to get him going into second. That left Hendrick at second and Odom at first and Mangual hit his home run after Bert Campaneris flied out to center for the second out.

Odom gave up a single to Dick McAuliffe to start the game and then Willie Horton followed with his ninth home run of the season, but Detroit did not get another hit until Mickey Stanley doubled with two-out in the seventh of the game between the respective division leaders.

Ed Brinkman opened the eighth with a double and Odom, 11-4, was relieved by Darold Knowles. Al Kaline singled and Horton brought home Detroit's third run with a sacrifice fly before Knowles closed out the game for his ninth save.

Bosox keeps pace with 10-7 victory

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—Carl Yastrzemski, Carlton Fisk and John Kennedy each drove in two runs to highlight a 13-hit attack Tuesday night that paced the Boston Red Sox to a 10-7 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Yastrzemski, observing his 33rd birthday, cracked his fourth homer in the third when the Red Sox scored three runs. Tommy Harper scored earlier when he singled and went to third on Luis Aparicio's single and scored on catcher Ed Kirkpatrick's low throw to first.

Boston pushed its lead to 5-0 with two more runs in the fourth off loser Mike Hedlund.

Marty Pattin went 8 2-3 innings to even his record at 12-12.

Seven runs in ninth gives Atlanta laugher over Phils

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Jim Breazeale connected with a three-run homer to highlight a seven-run rally with two out in the ninth inning Tuesday night to carry the Atlanta Braves to an 11-7 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Trailing 7-4 going into the ninth, Ralph Garr doubled and scored the Braves' fifth run on a single by Dusty Baker. Earl Williams walked and Breazeale hit reliever Billy Wilson's first pitch over the rightfield fence for his fourth homer of the season.

The Braves added three more runs after Breazeale's homer when Darrell Evans and Lum singled off Wilson and Gil Garrido singled for a run off Dick Selma while Sonny Jackson tripled for two more.

Ron Reed picked up the victory, his 11th against 12 defeats while Wilson suffered his first loss of the season.

Don Money hit a pair of homers, connecting with two on in the fourth that put the Phils ahead 4-2 and adding a solo smash in the seventh that broke 4-4 tie.

Atlanta had tied it with solo homers by Dusty Baker in the third and Mike Lum in the fourth.

Two-hitter winner for Texas

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Rich Hand and Casey Cox combined on a two-hitter and Dick Billings and Larry Biittner doubled in runs as the Texas Rangers edged the Milwaukee Brewers 2-1 Tuesday night.

The only hits off Hand were doubles by Mike Ferraro in the fifth inning and George Scott in the ninth. After Scott doubled to lead off the ninth, John Briggs flied out to deep right and Dave May walked. Cox then replaced Hand and got Ferraro to bounce out to second as Scott scored. Ellie Rodriguez walked for the fourth straight time but pinch-hitter Ollie Brown popped out to short center to end the game.

Ryan pitches four-hitter as Angels defeat Orioles

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Nolan Ryan tossed a four-hitter for his seventh shutout of the season Tuesday night in pit

Rhodesian officials shaken after being hit with news

MUNICH (UPI) —Rhodesian athletes and officials were pale and shaken Tuesday night as they learned of the decision of the International Olympic Committee to bar them from the Olympics.

"How soon do we have to go, tonight or tomorrow?" asked Alfred Neuve, a black 400-meter runner.

Another black member of the team, when informed of the decision, shook his head and said, "Oh, it's terrible."

Members of the team weren't informed of the news until Ossie Plaskett, the chief of mission for Rhodesia, returned from the IOC meeting with two other Rhodesian officials. They were accompanied by an army guard as they entered the building in the Olympic Village where they are housed.

Prior to their arrival, another German guard had been placed at the elevator door of the building to prevent newsmen from entering.

Before entering the elevator, Plaskett told newsmen that he had no comment to make and that he would have a statement later Tuesday night.

Although newsmen were not permitted to go upstairs, one UPI reporter was able to get on the elevator. During the ride up, the Rhodesian officials remained silent except to ask the guard about newsmen. The guard told them that only one had tried to go up and he had been refused entry to the elevator.

"That's fine," Plaskett said, "But there'll be a lot more as soon as the news gets out."

Upstairs, Ed Lewis, a black Liberian now teaching in Munich who was trying to help out the Rhodesian because he believed they were getting a bad deal, blamed the situation on the German newspapers.

"The German papers have handled it badly," he said. "They stimulated the whole thing. They kept talking about Ethiopia packing up and leaving like it was a crime. Did you read Saturday's paper? They shouldn't print things like that. It was unfair to all Rhodesians. It was all their fault. If they hadn't kept saying those things it would have been dropped and we would have got to stay. They're to blame."

After a few minutes, the room was cleared of all those not belonging.

Downstairs, a Kenyan track coach was in a different mood. When he was informed of the IOC decision he smiled broadly and said, "Great."

The Rhodesians at first said they would make no public statement.

But then they changed their minds. Red-eyed and obviously upset, Grant Stuart of Bulawoi, Rhodesia, president of his country's National Olympic Committee, appeared and spoke briefly.

"Naturally we are all bitterly disappointed that we can't compete but we accept the IOC's decision," Stuart said." "We are just grateful that we were not kicked out of the IOC completely and can stay in Munich to watch and, I hope, enjoy these Games. I hope the athletes will stay and watch them.

"We feel this was entirely a political action. I don't feel it came under the sports category at all."

Stuart, a land investor, was near tears and blinking his eyes as he issued the statement and waited for the interpreter to translate it into German and French.

He sat impatiently in the first floor interview room of the 18-story apartment house on the main plaza of the Olympic Village, the highest and most impressive building in the Olympic Village. He still wore his Munich Olympic pin on the left lapel of his green Rhodesian blazer about three inches above the Rhodesian crest on the left pocket.

He wore a matching green tie with a Rhodesian pin and also had the dark gray khaki trousers which were part of the team's traveling uniform.

Stuart refuted statements that a Rhodesian official was said to have made that the country would have entered the Games under the Boy Scout flag or any other flag in order to get to participate.

Shortly before Stuart appeared, two Rhodesian women rifle shooters came downstairs and went to the cafeteria. One, a portly blonde of about 45 with reddened eyes, refused to talk about the expulsion, but when someone patted her on the shoulder and expressed sorrow, she replied tartly, "Everyone's bloody sorry now."

Her voice broke and she reached into her purse for a tissue as tears again appeared in her eyes. A gray-haired teammate said: "It's their loss, not ours."

Other Rhodesian team members closeted themselves in their rooms.

Stan Wright, black assistant track coach of the U.S. team, said "I'm relieved. Now we can get on with the training and on with the Games. It hasn't affected our training. I can't comment on whether the decision was right or wrong."

Gerald Tinker, a black relay sprinter for the U.S., was all smiles after the decision but wouldn't make any comment. He was a member of the group of black U.S. athletes which met last week and said they would walk out if Rhodesia participated in the Games.

Another black athlete with Tinker who didn't identify himself, said, "That's all there is. There isn't anything to talk about now."

John Kathinji, a member of the Voice of Kenya television network, said, "It's great. It's a victory for Africa. This is justice."

He then made a thumbs up salute for photographers.

American 'giant' draws attention

MUNICH (UPI) —Chris Taylor of Dowagiac, Mich., weighs 405 pounds and he hopes to throw enough of his weight around to win two gold medals in wrestling in the Olympic Games which start Saturday.

Taylor, whose immense weight is spread out over a 6-foot-5 frame, is entered in both freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling. In Greco-Roman, a wrestler can use his hands only above the waist.

The United States never has won a gold medal in the Greco-Roman event and has not won a heavyweight title in freestyle since 1924. Only once in Olympic history has one man won gold medals in both events -when Kristjan Palusalu of Estonia did it in 1936.

"It's damn near impossible, but I got to go for it," Taylor said. "There is a possibility and I've got a better chance than most guys."

There are four days between the end of freestyle and the start of Greco-Roman. Taylor said that is enough time to make the switch mentally.

Taylor is the biggest man in the Olympic Village and, because of it, he can't go anywhere without attracting a crowd. He's most jovial, but occasionally he becomes annoyed at all the attention.

On this walk, he took a back way and only encountered:

—Two German workers wanting autographs and two German tourists wanting pictures.

—Two Canadian wrestlers who kidded him about having to buy two seats on the plane to Munich.

—Five Indian athletes who recognized him from a picture in an international magazine and wanted to know his weight, the size of his chest (60 inches) and wanted to feel his biceps (20 inches).

"They're twisted steel and dynamite," Taylor kidded them.

—And finally, he was approached by a French camera crew who wanted to make his picture holding up their 110-pound girl reporter from Paris. Taylor posed for the picture, but declined to lift the young woman.

"Too dangerous?" she asked.

"It's a personal preference," Taylor said.

"Can't you?" one of the photographers chided.

"Yes, I can, but I'd rather not," Taylor said politely.

Afterward, he said, "I don't like to do trick shots except on special occasions."

He can bench press 350 pounds.

Taylor, only 22, talks freely about his huge frame. He has a 50 waist, a 23-inch neck and size 14EEE shoes.

"It seems like I've always weighed 200 pounds or more," he said. "I reached 300 when I was a sophomore in high school. I think I've quit growing now. I weighed 405 after the workout yesterday."

Taylor took up wrestling at the request of his high school coach as something to do between football season and track. He was a tackle in football and the Michigan state shot put champion in track.

He won the state wrestling championship his first season and was second as a junior. He moved on to Muskegon Community College and won the National Junior College championship.

Then he went to Iowa State and captured the NCAA title last year as a junior and was unbeaten in 11 Olympics trials matches. He never has been beaten in 32 dual matches in college and has lost only a dozen matches out of 150 overall.

Three of the losses have been to Russian superheavyweight Alexander Medved, the Olympic champion in freestyle in 1964 and 1968 and a seven time world champion. Medved, 35, is back to defend his title and should be Taylor's toughest foe.

"I lost to him two years ago when he was 33, and I was only 20," Taylor said. "I had not wrestled that much freestyle at that time. I hope I'm better prepared now.

"I know what I'm doing now as far as standing up too high, different moves and things. I got some things that might work against him."

Medved is not entered in the Greco-Roman event. Taylor thinks his toughest competition will be from an East German and another Russian, but he doesn't know much about them.

His problem in this event is lack of experience. He has only wrestled it twice—in the 1970 world championships in Canada where he finished second and in this year's Olympic trials.

There isn't that much Greco-Roman competition in the United States, one reason why the U.S. never has won a gold medal in this event.

But Taylor could change all that.

Canada discounts repeat in 1976

MUNICH (UPI) —Canadian Olympic officials, among the most interested—and anxious—observers of the Rhodesian expulsion said Tuesday they did not expect any similar crisis in the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

But if a threat to the Games does erupt there, it will not be because anything was left undone to prevent it, according to Dick Pound, assistant head of the mission.

He agreed however that anyone seeking the widest possible publicity for a controversy might prefer to wait for the world forum conferred by the games.

"The only things broken more often than cola bottles are international agreements", he said.

Pound said Canada's idea of giving the Olympics back to the athletes, of returning to the comparative simplicity of earlier Games — though he praised the luxurious and expensive Munich setup —could also make it easier to take major decisions on participation.

U.S. cage team ready

MUNICH (UPI)—The American Olympic basketball coaches have been showing a proper amount of concern in the days leading up to the opening of the Games, but one of the assistant coaches said Tuesday things were looking a little brighter.

The only trouble seemed to be that the club was getting a little temperamental.

"We've been having good workouts," said John Bach, head coach at Penn State who is assistant to Olympic coach Hank Iba. "But they are a little on edge. They have been playing against each other for so long I think they are getting tired of seeing each other.

Giants lose quarterback

NEW YORK (UPI)—Quarterback Randy Johnson, who led an inspired New York Giants team to a 31-31 tie Sunday with the New York Jets, will be out for about three weeks, the Giants announced Tuesday, because of a slight shoulder separation he suffered on the last play of the game.

Johnson, who displayed poise and leadership in commandeering a Giant rally after a 17-7 halftime deficit, slipped while dropping back to pass on the final play and Jets tackle John Little fell on top of him.

Top names ready for modified test

MOUNT POCONO — While the Flight 216 Modified Championship race at Pocono International Raceway Sunday is attracting the top names in modified racing in the Northeast, a number of drivers will be at Pocono represneting the Southland of racing.

Max Berrier, a veteran of 19 years of racing, spent a good part of the 1971 season running modified racers under the NASCAR banner and placed 17th in the national standings. He is also registered as a driver in the NASCAR Grand American series and placed 11th in a race at his home track, Bowman Gray Stadium in Winston-Salem, N. C., last year. In 1970 he drove an American Motors Javelin and earned one victory and seven top five finishes in 12 races.

His best finish was in 1970 when he won the 150 in Winston-Salem and earned $1,300 to his total of $8,070 for the year. The 36 year old driver, who is self-employed, will be driving a 1969 Camaro powered by a 350 cubic inch Chaby mill.

Berrier will be joined by last year's winner of the modified race at Pocono, Bryan Osgood, who also won the initial modified event at the Pocono International Raceway, and Ray Hendrick who won the second race of the series at Pocono. Osgood will be trying for his third win in four years of competition at the Pocono International Raceway.

The length of the Flight 216 race will be new for these drivers as previous races were for shorter distances. This race will be run for 216 laps on the three-quarter mile oval at Pocono and the distance is 162 miles.

Gates will open at 8 a.m. and the practice session is scheduled to get under way that same hour.

Stroudsburg golfer wins tournament

HAWLEY — Peg Gould of Glen Brook Country Club, Stroudsburg, won low gross with an 88 in the recent Women's Association of the Lords Valley Country Club's third annual invitational tournament.

A total of 72 golfers representing six clubs participated.

Low gross for each club were: Lorraine English, Cliff Park; Dorothy Simonds, Holiday Lakes; Joan Howe, Honesdale; and Peg Brennan, Lords Valley.

Helen Michele of Lords Valley won flight "A," Georgalee Landers of Lords Valley flight "B," and Shirley Manheim of Lords Valley flight "C."

Yon Anderson of Holiday Lakes was closest to the pin and Deanne Olson of Cliff Park had the longest drive.

Low putts for each club were: Florence Wise, Cliff Park; Pat Collaretti, Holiday Lakes; Elizabeth Evert, Honesdale; and Kay Attwill, Lords Valley.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Interest in oil stocks sent prices higher in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 6.32 to match the 1972 high of 973.51 set on Aug. 14, the highest the Dow has been since Dec. 19, 1968 when it reached 975.14. The highest the Dow ever closed was at 995.15 on Feb. 9, 1966.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, another leading indicator, rose 0.69 to 112.41. The price of an average share of NYSE common stock gained 25 cents.

Volume for the day came to 18,560,000 shares compared with 14,290,000 shares Monday. Advances led declines 894 to 572 among the 1,783 issues on the tape.

Wall Street observers attributed the market's advance to renewed interest in cyclical stocks—the motors, steels and chemicals among them—but singled out the oil industry as having the most positive effect on the day's trading.

A story in the Wall Street Journal concerning the oil industry helped generate the interest. The newspaper reported supplies of gasoline and heating oil are being depleted more rapidly than expected and predicted a rise on oil prices. The paper said prices are expected to climb as fast as "government inflation watchers will allow."

Furthermore, the newspaper quoted a Wall Street investment house, White Weld & Co., which recommended five individual oil issues — Mobil, Phillips Petroleum and Jersey Standard on the NYSE, Ashland Oil and American Petrofina on the American Stock Exchange. Mobil jumped 2⅝ to 69, Phillips ½ to 35⅛, Jersey Standard 1⅜ to 81⅛, Ashland ¾ to 31⅝ and American Petrofina ⅝ to 28⅞. Other big gainers among the oils on the Big Board included Atlantic Richfield, up 2⅞ and California Standard, up 1¾.

Gulf Oil was the most active stock on the Big Board, climbing ⅝ to 26 on 258,900 shares. Federal National Mortgage was second, gaining 1⅝ to 20⅝ on 242,900 shares and Texaco third, up 1 at 35⅞ on 233,500 shares.

U.S. Steel featured its group, gaining 1⅛. Bethlehem rose ⅞ and Armco and Jones and Laughlin picked up ⅝ each.

Ford added 1 and Chrysler 1⅝.

Eastman Kodak sagged 1¾ among the chemicals while Dow and DuPont tacked on ¼.

Chesapeake & Ohio lost 1.

Airline stocks were mixed in fractions. American lost ¼, TWA ¼, KLM Royal Dutch ⅜ and Pan American eased ¼. Braniff added ⅛ and Delta ¼.

Polaroid jumped 3⅜ to lead the swingers while Levitz fell 3. Upjohn was one of the day's biggest losers, off 7½. Schering Plough was another loser, down 4¼.

Prices closed mixed to slightly lower on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex index fell 0.02 to 26.91. Volume was 4,102,000 shares compared with 3,230,000 shares Monday.

Ann Landers

Rehabilitated sex

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a woman who was considering marriage to a man who had suffered a stroke and was partially paralyzed. She expressed concern about his ability to function sexually. I hope she sees this letter because I speak from experience.

Four years ago when my husband was stricken I was sure our sex life was over. Our physician suggested therapy at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago. At the time it seemed hopeless but we went anyway. Within months he showed remarkable progress and now I can tell you that his recovery has been miraculous. Today he is a completely satisfying lover.

Please encourage that woman to marry and if she is lucky enough to live in or near Chicago, to take him to that wonderful hospital.

Been There

Dear Been: I do so with pleasure. The Rehabilitation Institute is one of the finest in the world. The director, Dr. Henry Betts, is a good friend of mine. Your letter provides me with the opportunity to say a good word for an institution that richly deserves it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the youngest of seven children. Our dear mother has made her home with us for eight years. My husband is a wonderful man — never a word of complaint.

I'm writing to ask how I can get my three sisters and three brothers who live right in this city to take turns inviting mama for a meal. It never occurs to them that she might enjoy a change of scenery. They think they are doing their share by dropping over here once a month for an hour — with a plant or a sack of hard candy. Any suggestions?

Heavy Hearted

Dear H.H.: Yes. Tell them — in plain language. One syllable words are best. Example: "Mom would love to eat at your house. Ask her to come for a meal next week. Which day is best?" The week after, call one of the other bubbleheads. Keep rotating until they get the message. If they don't get it, keep calling.

Dear Ann Landers: You told "Getting It All Together" that when a love affair is over the best way to recover is to put away the pictures, letters and mementos, move forward and not look back. I lost someone I loved very much and I can't get over it. He died. And he was just 18. The only comfort I have is looking at his picture, re-reading his letters and poetry, playing our favorite records and reliving, in my memory, the wonderful times we had together. These things help me feel closer to him.

It's been only a month but I wonder if it will ever be any different. People have assured me that time will ease the pain and that one day I'll be happy again. But how does one get through the present? Broken love affairs are often repaired. People get back together again. But in my case it will never happen. He is lost to me forever. The finality of it all has crushed my spirit. Please give me some words of wisdom.

I am — Empty, Empty, Empty

Dear Friend: When a love affair is over, the prescription is the same, whether the separation was caused by a misunderstanding, mutual agreement, or death. Look ahead, make a new life — and accept the realities.

A month is not very long. The wounds are still fresh, but you will not help them heal by keeping them open and dwelling on the pain. Consider your dream castle a delightful place to visit, but don't try to live in it. Life is for the living.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Denver Housewife." Welcome aboard the Ship of Fools. We also live in a state where tourists love to vacation. These past three summers we have spent $4,000 entertaining people in our home and taking them to places we wouldn't have gone ourselves.

Our generosity has not brought us any pleasure. We now know that giving means nothing unless it is done intelligently. Foolish generosity is neither rewarding nor is it appreciated. People expect you to continue to give. When they are refused, they forget the past and are bitterly disappointed.

We've had to tell three families we can't entertain them this summer and they are all mad at us. Does it pay to be nice?

S.S.S.

Dear S.S.S.: Your problem is that you have second-rate friends — the "what-have-you-done-for-me-lately" variety. Well — you've at least learned. Congratulations.

Drugs. How much is too much? Is pot O.K.? Is LSD too much? If you're on dope or considering it, get Ann Landers' new booklet "Straight Dope On Drugs." For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill plus a LONG, self-addressed, stamped envelope (16 cents postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Clean cats

By Jean Adams

CATS: (Q.) We have nine cats. My mother talks to them constantly, but she does not keep the house clean behind them and it smells awful.

I am terribly embarrassed when any of my friends come by. I don't invite them, but sometimes they come by anyway. Please help me.

— 16 Year-Old-Boy In Maine

(A.) You can start a cleanup. Build boxes for the cats. Teach the cats to use the boxes. Start today cleaning up the house, room by room.

Ask your mother and father to give you money for the mops, brooms, pans, soap, cleansers, boards, sand and other things you need.

This will awaken them to the fact that something unusual is going on.

When they start asking questions, talk to them about how dangerous to health living in an unsanitary house is.

Urge them to help you keep it shining and sweetly clean or get rid of the cats.

Your mother seems to like the cats as companions. If she likes them enough maybe you can convince her they are worthy of sanitation as well as conversation.

GREEN IN HAIR: (Q.) I was putting a brightener on my hair to bring out the blonde in it. It is naturally mousy brown. Late last summer I noticed it had just the slightest greenish tint.

I quit using the preparation and now about five inches of my hair is my natural hair and the rest is several shades of blonde with the green still mixed in. What on earth can I do with it?

Greenish Blonde in Pennsylvania

(A.) I suspect that somewhere you got an overdose of chlorine — maybe from a swimming pool, maybe from your own municipal water system.

I am sending you the name of a rinse you can use to give your hair a uniform shade. You should choose a tint near that of your own hair color. Or you could go to a beauty salon and have the ends colored to match your natural hair.

TYRANT: (Q.) My boy friend's mother is really the nicest person to me. But she lives with his grandmother and his grandmother is a tyrant.

She bosses him around and tries to dominate him to no end. Everything in the house has to go her way.

He wants us to get married and I want to, but I am afraid his grandmother will ruin everything with her bossiness and I couldn't bear that. What do you think? I am 17 and he is 20.

In Doubt in Iowa

(A.) Considering your age, I would advise you not to marry for some time — at least a year, preferably longer.

If the same boy continues to be your choice, you two can arrange to live at a sufficient distance not to be dominated by the grandmother.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions and comments to Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001).

Confident Nixon aides gear campaign to landslide

By JAMES P. GANNON
Dow Jones Ottaway News

MIAMI BEACH — Richard Nixon's political strategists are no longer gearing up their campaign machine merely to reelect the President. Now they are gearing up to make it a landslide.

They have become so sure of a mommoth Nixon victory in November, in fact, that they are even discontinuing their ritualistic public warnings about the dangers of overconfidence. Such cautions against complacency were a standard feature of their earlier forecasts. But now Nixon's operatives seem to feel that almost any amount of assurance is justifiable.

Clark MacGregor, the president's campaign manager, flatly tells newsmen that now there isn't any way for Nixon to "blow" this election. Indeed, he adds, "most people would say that if the election were held tomorrow, it would be a landslide."

But the Nixon team, gathered here for the Republican convention that started Monday, is doing more than just dreaming of overwhelming victory. The campaign strategy they have devised and have already begun to place in operation is specifically aimed at putting together a broad-based coalition going far beyond the GOP's normal base of strength, to produce nothing less than a ballot-box triumph of historic proportions.

The big-win strategy has these key elements:

—A carefully calculated wooing of blue-collar unionists, Jews, Catholics and other traditionally Democratic groups of voters who this year appear deeply disenchanted with the Democratic ticket. From platform praise of organized labor to presidential promises of parochial-school aid, the campaign pitch will invite converts from such usually non-Republican blocs.

—A massive and well-financed grass-roots organizational drive to locate and lock up every potential Nixon vote. The push will include massive mailings, big registration efforts, and election-eve telegrams urging the President's supporters to get out and vote.

—A hard-hitting campaign by a well-stocked stable of cabinet officers, White House aides and other "surrogates." This move will leave Nixon free to maintain a presidential posture while the underlings pummel Democratic nominee George McGovern and his controversial proposals.

The tatic has been evident in the series of press conferences here by cabinet officers attacking the Democrat and in such needles as Republican-produced phony $1,000 bills that bear McGovern's face and deride his ballyhooed welfare proposal.

A landslide, of course, would do more than provide welcome ego gratification for a man who narrowly lost the presidency in 1960, lopsidedly lost for governor of California in 1962 and barely squeaked into the White House in 1968.

It would help produce Republican gains in Congress, perhaps even majorities. It would greatly increase the President's leverage in dealing with North Vietnam, Russia, China and other foreign powers — as well as with Congress and crucial interest groups at home. And it would make it easier for Nixon to try to build the kind of program and organizational structure that might enrich the Republican party in power for a generation.

"If we do win the kind of victory that I now think is possible," MacGregor says, "The hand of the Chief Executive would be immeasurably strengthened" in dealing with a broad range of foreign and domestic problems.

The Republican campaign managers now see little likelihood of a strong McGovern comeback.

The Republican script calls for Nixon to stick largely to his presidential functions — riding herd on Congress, meeting with the Japanese premier, mastermining Henry Kissinger's journeys for peace — while Vice President Agnew and a supporting cast fan out on the countryside. Although Nixon will find occasions before then for "Non-political" presidential speechmaking — such as a scheduled appearance Thursday before the American Legion convention in Chicago — he isn't expected to begin the traditional city-to-city campaigning until mid-October, shortly after Congress adjourns.

The President apparently has come around to the view shared by many of his advisers: That he is a more effective vote-getter as President than as campaigning politician. Campaign manager MacGregor told a group of reporters the other day that the President "is well-aware of what most of you gentlemen have said — that the best course for him in this campaign is to continue functioning as President."

The campaign's two key issues, a top Nixon aide says, will be "Vietnam and the economy."

Nixonites rate Vietnam as a plus for the President. They argue that voters will be more impressed by his phaseout of the U.S. combat role and the drop in American casualties than by McGovern's charge that Nixon didn't end the war as he pledged to do.

Republican officials are less sanguine about the economic issue, although it isn't as ominous as might have been. One says unemployment is less a worry than rising prices. Administration men harp on declining rates of increase in the consumer price index, but they fear that the voter will be less impressed by such statistics than by the high price of hamburger. "Inflation could be a problem for us," one Nixon man frets.

GOP convention victory party

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—With money to spend and President Nixon's renomination assured, the Republicans will spend much of their national political convention this week entertaining each other with yacht parties, receptions and a "victory celebration."

First Lady Pat Nixon and her daughters, Mrs. Julie Eisenhower and Mrs. Tricia Cox, planned to arrive from Washington in time for the start of the three-day convention, which will be capped by the President's acceptance speech Wednesday night. The "victory celebration" follows given by Youth for Nixon.

The scheduled round of social events was in contrast to the Democratic National Convention last month in Miami Beach, where working sessions lasted all night and "partying" was at a minimum.

Mrs. Nixon and her daughters, exuding confidence in the President's ability to withstand the challenge of Democratic Sen. George McGovern in the November election, have said they want to meet with as many delegates and state caucuses as possible this week. They will be staying at the Fontainebleau Hotel near convention headquarters.

The Nixon women planned to attend a volunteers rally shortly after arriving in the convention city, followed by a $500-a-plate "gala" in the evening, featuring a number of show business personalities.

Interspersed with the various political functions are a number of private parties, including a yachting party Tuesday given by Chicago insurance executive W. Clement Stone, one of Nixon's biggest contributors and a man considered to be high on the list for an ambassadorship if Nixon is reelected. The President arrives Tuesday to receive the nomination.

Financier Edward F. Swenson of New York will host a reception at the exclusive Bath Club on Tuesday before the evening session of the convention. Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., will host a reception honoring the Republican members of Congress and members of state and local governments of Florida at the Barefoot Bay Club on Tuesday.

The final day of the convention will open with a Cuban Calypso carnival sponsored by the Florida Republican Host Committee. A dozen different Cuban bands will perform throughout the day.

The convention's ethnic groups will gather for a "heritage" reception Monday at 10 p.m. At midnight, black delegates will hold their own party nearby.

Gov. and Mrs. Ronald Reagan of California also have issued select invitations for a reception Wednesday aboard the stationary yacht, Miss Florida.

The Nixon women will be joined by Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew, wife of the Vice President, and her daughter, Kim, 16, for most of the events. Among other activities, the women will autograph copies of the official "The Living White House" for delegates.

A film on Mrs. Nixon's activities during the past four years in the White House will be shown during a convention session Monday night followed Tuesday by a "Women of Achievement" brunch. The program will be a tableau of women in politics since the days of the suffragettes.

"If the Democrats did anything for women, they'll probably be shown in the pageant, too," says Mrs. Anne Armstrong, co-chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Julie Eisenhower said her husband, David, a Navy lieutenant, will be able to attend "everything that doesn't look political" at the convention.

Willi Reif Jr.

ANNVILLE — Willi W. Reif Jr., 24, whose parents live at 145 Shady Lane, Honesdale, was commissioned an Army Second Lieutenant upon his recent completion of six weeks of Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) advanced summer camp at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Annville.

Lt. Reif was enrolled in the ROTC program at Northeastern University, Boston, Mass., where he learned the skills necessary to command. The summer camp at the Military Reservation was a practical application of his classroom studies.

The Lieutenant is a 1965 graduate of Brooklyn (N.Y.) Technical High School. He received a B.S. degree in 1972 from Northeastern University.

He and his wife, Gisela, live at 152 Belmont St., Boston.

Carol E. Thompson

FT. MCCLELLAN, Ala. — Carol E. Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison DeVore, Sciota, was promoted to private pay grade E-2 and awarded a letter of commendation after completing basic training at the Women's Army Corps Center, Ft. McClellan, Ala.

She was promoted two months earlier than is customary under the Army policy providing incentive for outstanding trainees. Her promotion was based on military bearing, leadership potential and training scores.

During the eight weeks of training, she received instruction in Army history and traditions, administrative procedures, military justice, first aid and field opportunity.

She is a 1971 graduate of East Stroudsburg High School.

LEO

March 21 to April 21 (Aries) Avoid extremes and don't misjudge others' intentions or actions. Work may seem strenuous, persons about you more difficult to get along with, but you CAN cope.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) Gauging situations correctly will depend on many factors. Take time to study, review, hear all sides, and you will arrive at intelligent conclusions more quickly.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) Avoid tendencies to procrastinate. Handle all matters in the order of their importance and, under pressure, stress the Geminian's innate ingenuity and sense of humor.

June 22 to July 24 (Cancer) You may not be alert to certain trends, not aware of underground rumblings — may just be believing what you wish to. Think again!

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) Frustration CAN be avoided; so can indecision and lack of faith in your own talents. Meet with others to talk over mutual problems and possible opposition.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) Screen out flaws in week's schedule. Try your opponent's tactics if effectual and usable in your program.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) Use your aptitudes in areas where they will do the most good and things will work out well. Be patient, tolerant of others' errors.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) Don't make decisions while under stress, and don't write anything you may later regret. Maintain your equanimity even if dealing with persons who annoy you.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) A favorable period for completing unfinished business, starting unusual projects and advancing new ideas. If opposed in the latter at first, try a new strategy.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) Saturn favorable. Awareness, keenness as to what is fitting and what will please could put you in a better position to advance, increase your prestige and credits.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) New offerings should not be rejected until they have been thoroughly studied. Neither be too quick to accept. Emphasize prudence, forethought.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) You can always be counted upon to give assistance to others when needed, and you may be called upon now. Give generously of your time, energy or assets. It will pay later.

YOU BORN TODAY, AS A Leo-Virgo cuspal (one born at the change of Signs), possess many of the traits of both, which makes you a most interesting individual. You have the typical reserve of the Virgoan; are not as dynamic and expressive as the average Leoite but, on the other hand, are far more practical than your Leo brother. You could be a tremendous success in the business and financial worlds; also in real estate and manufacturing. Your inventive powers are unmistakable, and you may have outstanding talent along musical lines. Your sense of responsibility is noteworthy and may extend from individuals to the cosmic; may lead you into missions of reform, promoting the general welfare in any and all directions. Your ideas along these lines are always sound, and you know how to put them into execution. As with the true Leoite, you are extremely versatile and could secceed as a writer, lawyer, physician or scientist — in fact, in almost any field where your interest leads you. Birthdate of: Louis XVI, King of France.

Newfoundland resident 'lives for his work'

'Pocono Picasso' still going at 92

By RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter

NEWFOUNDLAND — "I live for my work, I'd die without it."

"Been working since 1899 and haven't stopped yet," said William Hause of Newfoundland. Hause, who is 92 years young, was born near Pottstown in 1880 and moved to Newfoundland in 1885.

"First job I had was with G.S. Woolworth Company in Scranton as a stock boy. My pay for a week was $2.50 and my room and board was $2.00, but I had 50 cents that I could spend anyway I wanted too. I could get a lot of things. Bought a Columbia bike and paid it off by the month without any trouble.

"There was a bakery across the street from Woolworths and I got to know the baker and learned how to bake pies and other pasteries. I can still bake up a good batch of pies.

"Years ago I used to bake wedding cakes for people around here, but now some of the young people don't seem to be interested in weddings much less the cake.

"Can't even talk to the young today, anyway they go whizzing around in their cars so fast you couldn't catch them if you wanted too."

Loves to paint

Hause calls himself "The Pocono Picasso," because he loves to paint.

"I started painting when I was 45 years old," he said. "In 1925 I used to paint numbers on fire houses and became interested in trying to paint other things, been painting ever since. Now I call it my therapy."

The walls of his home are covered with all sorts of art work. Portraits, seascapes, landscapes, animals, flowers in every medium.

"You name it and I've painted it or will," he laughed. "I really like the air brush best," he continued. "Not all of my paintings are good, but once in a while I hit the jackpot."

He pointed to two pictures of the same house and asked, "Which one do you think is best?"

When I pointed to the one I liked he chuckled and said, "You've got a good eye, girlie, that's the one I did, the other is by a professional artist."

Noticing a car in his driveway, I asked who drove it. "Why who do you think," he quipped. "I do, there ain't nothing to driving, you just have to be careful.

"I learned to drive in 1916. A fellow I worked for had a Chandler automobile and couldn't drive it. He hired an Englishman to teach him. He told me to try it first. That Englishman taught me all there was to know in just one day. Then I taught my employer.

"Been driving ever since and just last week I was in Dunmore when some darn fool came around a corner and ran into me and dented my fender. First accident I ever had and it wasn't my fault.

"I've driven more miles than I can remember. I still do a lot of driving. Last year I drove to Berkley Springs, Va., to visit some friends. Got there and back without any trouble.

"You can't get me to admit I'm old. But there is one time that I will, it's when I go to the Fair," he laughed, "that's because I can chisel in on those free meals they give to the old folks. You know that Fair has sure become sophisticated since the early days.

Likes to eat

"I sure like to eat. I can remember when my wife and I would go out on Saturday night and get a real good deviled crab dinner, it would cost $1.50 for the both of us. Just try to get something like that now. Today you'd better be prepared to put a first mortgage on your home to pay for a dinner in a restaurant.

"You know I used to walk to school. Now-a-days the kids get picked up by a bus and if they miss it the mother drives them there. Then they get to school and go into a big gym to get exercise. Sure is funny, isn't it?

"I believe in hard work and plenty of exercise, I own three power mowers and two of the old fashioned kind that you have to push. I've got a big area to keep up, but I prefer the old kind of mower.

"Guess I'm the only man around that still cuts with a scythe. I go out and cut along the roadway and keep my neighbor's place spruced up.

"Why I know this fellow who has a yard no bigger than this room," shaking his head he continued, "he told me he paid $700 for a big riding mower. It sure is funny seeing him riding that thing with his knees almost up to his eyes. Heck, it would do him a lot of good if he'd push a mower around and it would save him a lot of money too.

Smokes cigars

"I smoke five cigars a day, don't inhale because I'd probably choke to death.

"I watched a commercial on TV and got a kick out of one fellow saying he furnished his home with coupons from a cigarette pack. You know there is a cigar company in Philadelphia that takes the cigar bands and you can get some pretty nice things, so I save all of the bands. I've a lot of them now and I guess I'd better send them in soon.

"I've done a lot of different jobs in my time. Was with the Forest Service from 1938 to 1968. During that time I manned Gould's Tower. You can see it up there on the mountain," he said pointing out of his window.

"I can still walk the third of a mile to the tower and up the 86 steps too.

"I manned that tower from Spring to snowfall, from 8 a.m. to dark for $90 a month. Never had any fires. You know why?

"It's because there are Pennsylvania Dutch around here and they are so tight-fisted they will hold a match until it burns out, so no fires," he laughed.

Gets chased home

"I go out some evenings to play dominos with some friends, but comes 10 o'clock they're ready to go to bed and send me home. Then I have three hours to kill. Never go to bed before one o'clock and get up at eight every morning.

"I don't stay here in the winters anymore, I go out to Decatur, Ill., to stay with a nephew. Took a plane there once, but don't like it. All you do is get strapped in a seat and look out of a tiny window and see only clouds. People say bus and train are too much trouble, I don't think so because traveling by bus or train you can see all of the beautiful contry.

"You know, I see everything I look at, most people don't."

"My wife died in 1962 and all of my brothers and sisters are gone too. There were six brothers and one sister in my family, I'm the last one left."

Chuckling softly he continued, "I really don't say I'm old, but when I drive by Arthur Frey's Funeral Home I sure step on the gas, because when he looks at you twice you can bet he's doing some estimating.

"I'd still like to do some traveling, in fact I would like to go to England. Guess I should go soon, don't you think?"

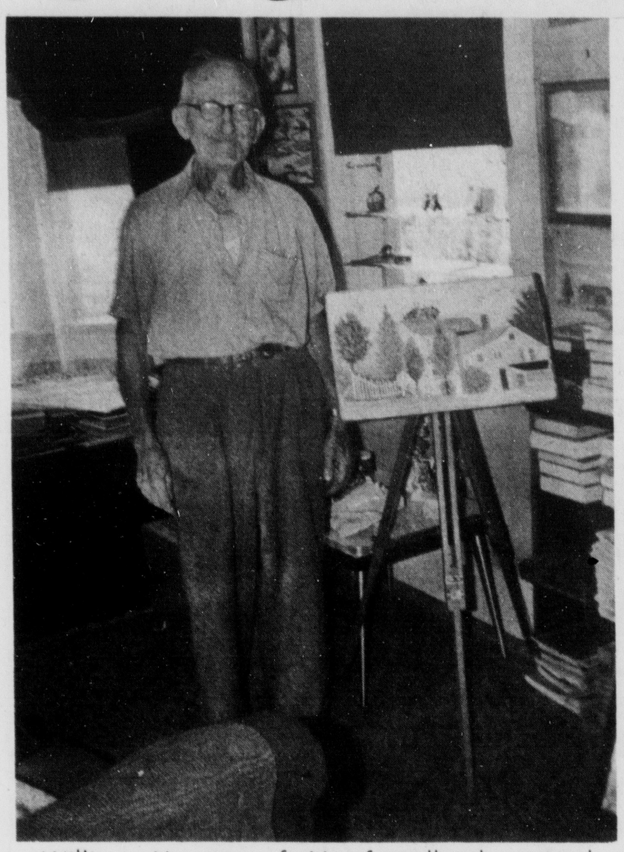
As he stood in his well-kept yard bidding me good-bye, he pointed to some of the stately trees and said, "Some of them are younger than I am."

He showed me his rock gardens and stopped to pick up a large chunk of dirt and said, "I love to touch the earth and love to smell the growing things."

As I got into my car, this genial happy man, whose humor is like good cheese, mellowed and ripened by age, said, "By the way I'm a Lion too, but a quiet one, stopped roaring long ago."

As I started to drive away he added. "Come and see when I'm a hundred, I'll still be around."

You know, I bet he will be, too.



William Hauser, of Newfoundland, started painting at the age of 45 and he still does it. He calls it "therapy." At the age of 92 he still refuses to admit he is old, except in some certain interesting situations.

Complaint against builder withdrawn pending probe

PHILADELPHIA — An assistant district attorney in Philadelphia said Tuesday a summons issued for Montgomery County Builder J. Leon Altemose has been withdrawn pending an investigation of the charges which were filed against him.

Altemose, formerly of White Haven, was charged Monday with aggravated assault and battery and inciting to riot by a woman involved in an incident last Friday in Philadelphia in which the contractor had been accosted by union pickets.

Altemose had filed charges against the persons he believed had accosted him.

After the counter complaint had been filed on behalf of a Gena Marie Plyler, Judge Paul A. Dandridge ordered Altemose to appear in court on Sept. 1 to answer the charges.

However, Eugene Allesandroni, the assistant district attorney, said the summons was withdrawn after the judge learned the complaint had not been filed through the district attorneys office to allow an investigation, as required by law.

The assistant district attorney said the matter is now under investigation and a decision is expected later this week on whether the summons would be reissued.

Altemose and his cousin, Roger Altemose, formerly of Pocono Lake, own the Altemose Construction Co. which has been under fire since early this spring when the firm was building a multi-million dollar shopping center near Valley Forge with non-union labor.

The firm employes 300 persons, all of whom are non-union.

On June 5 more than $300,000 of equipment was destroyed at the construction site. The company has charged union employes were responsible for the damage.

Last Friday Altemose was confronted by pickets on the street in front of a downtown Philadelphia bank. The pickets were there protesting the bank's loaning of money to the company for the construction of the shopping center.

Witnesses of the incident said Altemose was knocked down, kicked and hit by a group of person.

Altemose admitted he had been taking photographs of the pickets because he felt they were in violation of a court order against harrassment tactics and picketing by the union.

Altemose subsequently filed charges against five men regarding the incident.

Pa. highway department deslicks portion of Rt. 209

BRODHEADSVILLE — The next time the rain starts falling in Brodheadsville, residents of the tiny West End village can breath a sigh of relief, because Rt. 209 has been made a little safer.

Formerly described as "trecherous during any rainy weather" by the local citizens, the highway has been responsible for numerous accidents in the past, especially near the Brodheadsville A&P, the Brodheadsville Catholic church and the Meadowbrook Diner.

Because of requests from several residents about the hazardous stretch of road, the state highway department has applied a special deslicking overlay which runs from the A&P through the village of Brodheadsville. It cost approximately $6,000.

"We haven't heard of any accidents since the new deslicker has been down," said William Heller, superintendent of highways in Monroe County. "We're hoping this is effective."

Heller added that the highway department had previous success with the same type of deslicker when it was used on Rt. 209 in the Bushkill area.

Worried about answering a blind box number ad?
(because you don't know who the advertiser is?)

If you are worried about answering one of these blind ads — since it may be your own firm — simply do this:
Place your letter of application in an envelope addressed to the box number and seal it. Then put the envelope in another envelope addressed to the Classified Dept., The Pocono Record, and enclose the names you do NOT want to receive your reply. If one of the companies (or individuals) you listed placed the ad, we will simply discard your reply.
Sorry, but we cannot return your letter without violating the confidence of our advertisers.

State Compensation Commission — they'd do it again

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Commonwealth Compensation Commission knew it was bad politics to propose a $9,600 salary - expense increase for state legislators. But it would do the same thing again.

"We said in our report that salary increases would be unpopular," Commission chairman Richard Schier said in an interview, "but that was not an issue with us.

"It has to do with my feeling of what a citizen's commission does. It shouldn't base itself on political whims.

"Whether you're talking about Ray Shafer's pot commission, abortion, the governor's tax advisory commission or anything else, I don't think they recommend what is political feasible. They recommend what is right."

Schier said he was disappointed the entire commission package was rejected. It would have increased salaries from $7,200 to $15,600 and lowered expense accounts from $8,400 to $6,000 and made them accountable.

After a solid week of haggling, the House and Senate finally agreed on a trimmed-down version leaving the salary proposal at $15,600 but cutting expense accounts to $2,500.

"Frankly," Schier said, "it's a near miracle that they did anything given the situation."

Schier praised the lawmakers for accepting the most significant section of the legislative recommendations — the elimination of the unaccountable expense account.

"Now pay is in one separate water-tight department and expenses are separate," he said. "Now, when future commissions make recommendations, they won't have an expense fight to go through."

He admitted that there is no guarantee that the lawmakers will account for their expenses in detail. He said it will be up to the senators and House members to police themselves by adopting expense account regulations.

"There ain't any fat in a $2,500 accountable expense allowance," Schier said. "We thought they could prescribe their own rules."

He has recommended to legislative leaders that they adopt the expense formula drawn up by the Legislative Modernization Commission. He did not give any details.

Schier said the legislature's biggest mistake was its refusal to keep the salary proposals for judges and top state officials at the high level.

"The last time any of those people were given a raise was in 1967," he said, "so the raises they were given amount to 1.4 per cent per year since that last adjustment.

"If you made up a commission of the heads of taxpayer groups, I don't think they could say a 1.4 per cent increase per year is fair. Even they would ask for more."

Will study pensions

Schier said the five-member commission would turn immediately to a study of pensions for the 616 officials whose compensation it oversees.

The Commission increased salaries but specifically ordered pensions frozen pending a complete study by the Pennsylvania Economy League.

"The commission has never considered the question of pensions other than to decide they were too complicated to decide in the original report," Schier said. "Beyond that, the pensions system remains a mystery to me."

Schier's term and the terms of the other four appointees expire in December. Five new persons will be appointed for two-year terms.

"If we can get over the first hurdle of making up for the past six or seven years, then the next one can make moderate salary recommendations that conform to rises on the cost of living," he said.

"The first commission was trying to get them in one jump where they ought to be. That jump proved to big to be politically feasible. When you wait too long, the raises seem exhorbitant."

Schier declined to make suggestions for how the next commission might handle the pay question.

"This commission had enough trouble with kibbitzing," he said. "They will have to do without sideline coaching from me."

Flood of Cuban refugees now trickle, but steady one

MIAMI (UPI)—The flood of Cuban refugees to the United States is down to a trickle, but they still come.

Among the latest arrivals were four men from Havana who were picked up by a private yacht off the Florida keys last week after a five-day trip in an open 12-foot boat.

There is no accurate count of the number of Cubans who have reached these shores since commercial flights between Cuba and the United States ended during the missile crisis of October, 1962.

And no one knows how many have died in the attempt to cross the Florida straits, a narrow but treacherous stretch of water between Cuba and the Florida keys, only 90 miles wide at one point.

A group of Cuban exiles dedicates a monument today in Miami's Marine Stadium to those who were lost in the straits. Appropriately, the monument is called "La Balsa Vacia," the empty raft—symbolic of the flimsy, makeshift rafts that have been found drifting in the sea with no one aboard.

For nearly five years starting in December, 1965, the Cuban refugee airlift set up by President Lyndon B. Johnson brought 3,500 to 4,000 Cubans a month to Miami on twice-daily flights paid for by the U.S. government.

The Cuban government announced a year ago the list of those who had signed up before the May, 1966, deadline was nearly exhausted. The flights continued sporadically, however, presumably as the last applicants were rounded up from around the island.

The last airlift flight to date arrived in Miami on March 17, bringing the total arrivals for that program to 255,494.

The program now is in limbo, without any formal announcement that it is over. In fact, there was a recent flurry in the Cuban colony in Miami as exiles received word from relatives in Cuba that passengers were being rounded up for more flights.

According to a source connected with relief operations in Miami, the U.S. State Department refused to send planes to Cuba for the refugees unless the Cuban government agreed to continue the flights without interruption until the program was concluded. When the Cuban government refused to meet these terms, the source says the refugees who had assembled at Varadero for departure were told to return to their homes.

The virtual end of the airlift has not produced a wave of refugees arriving in Florida in rafts and small boats, contrary to some predictions. Sources in Miami say the Cuban government has made it increasingly difficult to obtain small boats or raft materials. In addition, the raft-voyagers are generally people who were not signed up for refugee flights in the first place.

Commercial flights to Spain continue to take Cuban emigrants. An estimated 25,000 to 30,000 Cuban refugees are now in Spain, many of them attempting to get U.S. residence visas to join relatives in Florida and other parts of the United States.

Under U.S. immigration quotas, the wait is long. But eight Cubans —members of two families that arrived in Spain earlier this year—recently beat the waiting list with an unusual ploy.

The eight persons flew to the Dominican Republic as tourists, traveled to neighboring Haiti and bought a leaky old fishing boat. Then they set off on a risky voyage through the Bahamas channel —skirting Cuba's northern coast —and finally were picked up by a fishing vessel from the Bahamas that took them to Florida waters.

A few hours after coming ashore at Miami, the eight Cubans were granted political asylum and joined their relatives in a tearful reunion.

Irving felt Hughes would 'buy' book

NEW YORK (UPI)—Clifford Irving, admitting he made "one of the more naive assumptions of the century," says he thought his bogus autobiography of Howard Hughes was so good the billionaire recluse might consider it superior to his real life story and not expose the fraud.

"I felt that the book would be so good that Hughes might say, 'My God, this is a better life than I've lived!'—and let it stand as his autobiography," Irving said in an article in the September issue of Ladies' Home Journal published Wednesday.

But Irving, fined $10,000 and sentenced to two and one-half years in federal prison for concocting the literary fraud, added, "It was one of the more naive assumptions of the century."

In excerpts from his forthcoming book, "Clifford Irving: What Really Happened," Irving said he forged letters with Hughes' signature whenever he pleased and they were accepted by McGraw-Hill, the publishing firm which paid close to $1 million for the phony book. Irving has been ordered to repay the money.

Whenever the scheme seemed to falter, Irving added, he would forge another letter to perpetuate the fraud. In fact, Irving said, McGraw Hill hired a handwriting expert who reportedly determined the letters authorizing the book were authentic.

Research for the book, Irving added, was stolen from the Library of Congress, copied from a draft of Hughes associate Noah Dietrich's autobiography, which Irving was asked to rewrite, and taken from Time-Life's confidential files.

Irving said he did not think he, his wife Edith, and co-author Richard Suskind, who is now serving a six month jail term, were criminals.

In the article he said he told Suskind, "Hell, it's no federal case—we haven't stolen anything. I've lied, that's all. As long as they (McGraw-Hill) get their money back, the worst thing they can do is yell. And I have a feeling they won't yell too loud, because they might look pretty foolish."

Mrs. Irving, also fined $10,000, finished a two-month jail term Aug. 19 for cashing McGraw-Hill checks intended for Hughes.

"I saw the project only as a hoax, a wild and weird literary adventure—a happening," Irving said. "The money had no meaning for me; I had money."

He also said that when McGraw-Hill learned a man named Sam Post was attempting to sell another alleged Hughes autobiography, the publisher called Irving immediately. When Irving notified Suskind, he responded, "What a rotten thing to do. It's a hoax! We've got to knock (it) out of the ball game before McGraw-Hill gets the idea there could be two hoaxes."

Irving said he believed they could get away with the hoax because "Hughes would never be able to surface to deny it—or else he wouldn't bother."

"We were creating something unique, a remarkable man telling a remarkable life story —all the more remarkable because it was based on fact, yet we had the freedom and power to infuse fact with the drama of fiction," Irving added.

Loan announced

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority (PIDA) Wednesday announced a $26,000 loan to the Greater New Castle Deverlopment Corp. PIDA said the money will be used by the Silver Maple Foods, Inc., for a second mortgage for construction of a new building and enlargement of an existing plant in New Castle.
